CALLS FOR MARCHERS FOR "VOTES FOR WOMEN"

Miss Elizabeth M. Blanchard Suggests Parading on July 4th.

WOULD CARRY BANNERS

Asks All Advocates of Woman's Suffrage Who are Willing to Show Their Colors by Marching in Public to Send Names to Her.

Suffragettes carrying banners entitled "Votes for Women" will probably be a feature of the Fourth of July parade in Bellefonte. Just how many fair marchers will appear in line is not known at this time. This will be the first appearance in public of Bellefonte suffragettes.

Miss Elizabeth M. Blanchard, as chairman, has issued the following notice :

"An effort is being made to have a number of the organizations of the town participate in the Fourth of July parade.

"A committee has been appointed for a Woman's Suffrage Contingent. All those who would desire to march under the banners of 'Votes for Women' will please send their names to Miss Elizabeth M. Blanchard, Chairman."

Just how many suffragettes there are in Bellefonte will probably be revealed by the call to them to show their colors and carry banners on the Fourth of July. In some of the cities the fair marchers parade in uniforms. Whether any of the suffragettes in Bellefonte have provided themselves with uniforms for the Fourth of July parade is a secret not to be divulged until the marchers make their appearance.

Once the suffragettes go to work in earnest a big turnout may be looked for. In Washington several months ago, it will be recalled, the suffragettes held a monster parade. A prominent United States Senator viewed the parade with several friends from a window at the New Willard Hotel.

"Is your wife in the parade"? inquired one of the Senator's friends.

"Yes, she's parading," replied the Senator.

"I was just wondering if she would march," continued the Senator's friend.

"There was no doubt about her marching," replied the Senator. "The only donbt was about her making me get into the parade, too."

MAJ. HASTINGS SENTENCED

Gets Nine to Fourteen Years in Eastern Penitentiary at Phila.

Major William H. Hastings was on Tuesday sentenced at Harrisburg to a term of 9 to 14 years in the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia, to pay a fine of $20 and also the costs of prosecution. Several days previously he plead guilty to shooting Ross A. Hickok, husband of Helen Hastings, daughter of the late Governor Hastings.

Major Hastings, before sentence was pronounced, made an appeal to the court in which he outlined his grievances against the representatives of his late brother's estate. He was deeply affected when the long prison term was decreed. He is 71 years old and the likelihood is that he will never leave the prison walls alive.

Wrecked an Automobile.

John Confer, of Snow Shoe, and a party of friends came to Bellefonte on Tuesday in the former's automobile. Late Tuesday evening the car was standing in front of the Brockerhoff House when several young men happened along. Regardless of the fact that the car did not belong to them they piled in and started out Bishop Street at a lively peace. In some manner they lost control of the machine and backed it into a tree. The car was so badly wrecked that Mr. Confer estimated it would cost fully $500 for repairs.

Five State College students were arrested yesterday and held in heavy bail. They finally settled by paying Mr. Confer $995 and taking the car. They will have the car repaired and sell it for whatever it will bring.

Child's Leg Fractured.

Frank, the 4-year-old son of Victor Gentil, met with a painful accident yesterday morning, sustaining a bad fracture of the right leg above the knee. Jacob Barlet was hauling a pole for the Bellefonte Electric Company, one end of the pole resting on his dray wagon and the other end trailing on a small truck. In the Court House Diamond the Gentil child slipped and fell in front of the truck, one of the wheels passing over his leg. He was removed to the hospital.

DESCRIBES HORROR OF BATTLE AT MATAMOROS

J. F. Steele, One-Time Resident of Bellefonte, was Eye-Witness.

BURNED DEAD BODIES

Corpses of Soldiers Lay in Streets for Days After Town Surrendered—Cruel Sport in Bull Ring Banished by New Government.

(Written by J. F. Steele, of Brownsville Texas, just on the border line between Texas and Mexico, where the battle of Matamoros was fought several weeks ago. Mr. Steele was born in Centre County and lived in Bellefonte several years, going from here in 1874 to Iowa, where he resided 33 years. He has been in Texas 6 years and predicts it is going to be an ideal State.—Editor The Republican.)

Editor The Republican:—The fall of historic Matamoros, just across the river from Brownsville, Texas, I shall endeavor to describe briefly. We can see into the city from the banks of the river. Matamoros at one time was a city of 17,000 people, and before the battle of June 3rd, last, it had about 7,000 Now it has but 1500, with about the same number of soldiers of the ceranzaities, sympathizers ot the Madero goverment.

The battle commenced at 10 o'clock on the morning of June 3rd, and lasted all night and until 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, the 4th, when the city surrendered. Two hundred and thirty-nine deserted the city while the battle was going on. A Major who was so brave to start with deserted his people and lay in an old tumble-down house in the outskirts of the city until he got a chance to get to the river and cross over to Brownsville to his family. He left his men to the mercy of the rebel, Ramos, the commander. He left his command the afternoon of the 3d when the battle was fiercest. He claimed to have been shot, but they say that powder marks were on his clothing.

About 500 persons were killed in the battle, including both sides. I was over in the city and saw one place where a man was killed. Blood was on the sidewalk and his brains scattered over the door of the house. Another house I passed gave forth a terrible odor, indicating the presence of the dead inside. This was five days after the battle. Blanco's men, the rebels, got on top of the houses and shot down into the breastworks and routed the federals. It was a hard fight. After the battle Blanco buried his men and left the federals lying scattered about all over the town. Their bodies lay where they had fallen and remained there until the stench became so stifling that Blanco secured oil and wood and after gathering the bodies in a pile burned them. To make it even more terrible some of the bodies were scarcely scorched. Many bodies were left there in that condition. Words fail me in my attempt to describe the horror of the situation.

A man went to Blanco with $300,000 and asked him to turn over to the Government. Blanco had him taken out and shot. He is using just about the same means and methods employed by Diaz in his thirty years of governing the republic, If any faction opposed him he had them put out of the way at once. He ruled with an iron hand, and that seems to be about the only way to keep them in subjection.

There are 18.000,000 people in Mexico, and 4,000,000 Mexicans or Spaniards, and only about 3,000,000 are educated, so you see that conditions are bad. It would be a thorn in the flesh to have them annexed to the United States.

Another man and I went to see Blanco. Before he would see us he insisted on knowing the nature of our business. He treated us very nicely. He will not let his soldiers drink. The saloons were open last Sunday, but he wouldn't allow them to sell to the soldiers. They burned about a dozen houses in the city and the bull ring. It should have been burned long ago. The bull ring is a terrible thing. Poor horses are put into the ring, with a man on them, and an enraged bull gores them until their entrails are torn out. The bull is allowed to continue the attack even to the point of going about and tramping on the helpless, wounded animals. If the horses are not too badly torn their wounds are sewed up and they are forced back into the ring. No more cruel, heartless sport could be imagined. The significant part about it is that the bull ring depended on the patronage of visitors. Had it not been for American sight-seers the bull ring could not have endured.

In my judgment it would have been much better had the federals turned over as they gained nothing, in fact lost everything. Personally I am a little like Pat. I would rather be a live coward than a dead hero.

Yours,
J. F. STEELE.

Name The Amount And Name The Candidate.

During the last few weeks the "Centre Democrat" and the "Democratic Watchman" have been indulging in an interesting exchange of comment on the morals of the Democratic party in Centre County. The appointment of Charles R. Kurtz, editor of the "Centre Democrat" to the $5000 position of Surveyor of the Port, once held by P. Gray Meek, editor of the "Watchman," is the cause of all the trouble. Recently the "Centre Democrat" made the flat charge that one or more Democratic County Chairmen pocketed a part of the campaign funds which had been extracted from "whiskey distillers and beer brewers." Last week the "Watchman" retaliated with the direct and unqualified charge that Editor Kurtz personally went to Elk County and got the boodle from beer brewers to be used in the campaign in Centre County one year. The "Watchman" does not say so, but the year in question supposedly was that of the last judgeship campaign in Centre County. The "Watchman" does not say so in plain English but clearly implies that the campaign boodle was obtained from Senator J. K. P. Hall, of Elk County, one of the old-line Democratic bosses recently thrown overboard by the Democratic reorganization element, of which Editor Kurtz is the recognized leader in Centre County.

The "Watchman" makes a very grave charge against the new Surveyor of the Port when it says :

> "When it comes, however, to this brazen attempt at belittling the character of many of the best men in our party and charging the party itself with having used funds extracted from beer brewers, etc., for improper purposes it is time to call a halt and we think the most effective way to call the halt is to tell you that the very man who is making these charges of corruption now was the man who went to Elk County alone and carried the boodle back to Bellefonte. And so far as our knowledge is concerned that was the only time in the history of our party that any considerable sum of money was secured from an outside source to be used in a campaign for local candidates."

Either the "Watchman" is bluffing or it is in possession of facts to warrant such a bold assertion. If the "Watchman" is in possession of facts then it knows for whom the money obtained from the St. Mary's Brewing Company of Elk County (Senator J. K. P. Hall), was used in the last judgeship campaign in Centre County. It is inconceivable that the "Watchman" should know the name of the man who went to Elk County and got the boodle and not know the name of the Democratic candidate for whom the money was used. If the "Watchman" is honest and sincere and on the level with the public it will frankly reveal the name of this Democratic candidate.

"The Republican," therefore, calls upon the "Watchman" for a straightforward, direct reply to these questions :

> "In what year did Charles R. Kurtz carry back from Elk County boodle to be used in a Democratic campaign in Centre County? also, how much money did he receive from the St. Mary's Brewing Company or Senator J. K. P. Hall?"
>
> "What is the name of the Democratic candidate in Centre County in that campaign for whom the money contributed by the St. Mary's Brewing Company or Senator J. K. P. Hall was used?"

If the "Watchman" refuses to make public this information in its possession it will thereby make itself a party to what it confesses to have been a conspiracy to flood Centre County with brewery money to elect one or more Democratic candidates to high offices. Nothing short of a frank statement of the facts and the placing of responsibility squarely upon those involved will relieve the "Watchman" from the suspicion that it has guilty knowledge of the conspiracy.

The "Centre Democrat" has directly charged some Democratic County Chairman with devoting campaign funds to their private use. The "Centre Democrat" says :

> "County Chairmen too often were but pulling pools to those higher up, and frequently dispensed only part of the grease extracted from big corporations, the whisky distillers and beer brewers, out to their select 'privates' in the ranks."

Here again is a charge that whisky distillers and breweries have been financing the Democratic campaigns in Centre County. Certainly the "Centre Democrat" does not accuse all Democratic County Chairmen in the past fifteen years with having deliberately stolen funds entrusted to them. In common decency it is due the innocent Chairmen and the public as well that the "Centre Democrat" give the names of those Chairmen who pocketed a part of the Democratic corruption fund. If this information is not forthcoming those Chairmen who know that the charge does not apply to them owe it to themselves to publicly say so. This would point the finger of conviction directly at the guilty Chairmen, if any are guilty.

Meanwhile, it must come with astounding force to the people of Centre County that for years past Democratic campaigns here have been financed by whisky distillers and breweries. That such has been the case is the confession by both the "Centre Democrat" and the "Watchman." Their intimate relation with Democratic management in Centre County fully warrants the assertion that they are not speaking at random in telling the source of the Democratic campaign funds. Naturally the public will ask:

"What prompted whisky distillers and breweries to flood Centre County with money to elect one or more Democratic candidates?"

"Have these whisky distillers and breweries been repaid?

"If so, how?"

NEW SCHOOL IDEAS

Short Recreation Periods Prove Success at Some Places.

A bulletin of the State Board of Education notes that two-minute recreation periods at stated times, in addition to the regular recess periods, are provided by Supt. Reed in the schedules of the Donora schools for all grades. This gives an opportunity to flush the rooms with fresh air and keep the humidity in the rooms more like that outside. These periods occur twice in the morning, in addition to the regular intermissions. All windows are open. Custodians are appointed from among the boys to open and close the windows.

An innovation has been introduced into the high school by having the morning session begin at 8 and close at 11:15 o'clock. The afternoon session begins at 1:15 p. m. and closes at 4:30. The purpose of the longer session is to abolish the necessity of home study and also to afford the students an opportunity to study under the supervision of teachers. The results so far seem to be uniformly successful.

At Williamsport Supt. Lose reports a new $250,000 high school in process of erection. Within easy reach of the school building is a school athletic field of five acres. It will contain a football field, baseball diamond, basketball court, circular running track and a grandstand and bleachers to accommodate 5,000 people.

Robert D. Musser, of near Spring Mills, was a business visitor in town between trains on Tuesday.

TWO ARE NATURALIZED

Philip Saul and Tony Cocco Receive Final Papers in Court on Tuesday.

At a brief session of naturalization court held on Tuesday by Judge Orvis Philip Saul and Tony Cocco passed a satisfactory examination and received final papers of citizenship. The former was born in Germany and has resided nearby Bellefonte for many years. When he was informed that he had been made a citizen he made no secret of his delight and told friends at the Court House that it was the proudest day o his life. Tony Cocco is a native of Italy. He resides below town and is employed at the lime kilns. A third applicant for naturalization failed to appear.

Frank S. Becker, of Philadelphia, a naturalization examiner attached to the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington, D. C., was present in court and examined Saul and Cocco. The latter said that he had once been arrested when a constable entered his home and found an unloaded gun. Mr. Becker, addressing the court, stated that he had been unable to find any record of payment to the State of one-half of the $25 fine collected from Cocco. He asked the court to inquire in tothe matter. Judge Orvis instructed District Attorney Fortney to do so.

The next session of naturalization court will be held in November.

TO BREAK GROUND SOON FOR AUTOMOBILE PLANT

J. P. Harbold, Engineer and Designer, Here to Prepare Plans.

ASK BIDS NEXT WEEK

General Manager Sieg Says Orders Have been Booked for Twenty-five Cars—To Award Contract for Buildings in Near Future.

General Manager Sieg, of the Bellefonte Automobile Manufacturing Company, stated yerterday that plans for the new building will be completed in time to ask for bids next week and that ground will be broken and active operations under way as soon as the contract is awarded. J. P. Harbold, of York, engineer and designer of the "Bellefonte Six," arrived here yesterday and with borough engineer J. Henry Wetzel staked off the ground at the Hughes athletic field for the foundations for buildings.

At his temporary offices in the Temple Court Mr. Sieg said that orders have been booked for 25 cars for delivery as soon as it is possible to deliver them. It is understood that the canvass for local subscriptions to take up $5,000 of bonds and approximately a like amount for the site for the plant has been completed. Mr. Sieg, discussing plans for the near future, said that the next few weeks would witness a marked change in the appearance of the Hughes athletic field. As soon as the factory is completed, he added, from 25 to 30 new families will locate in Bellefonte.

The new company has received more encouragement up to the present time, stated Mr. Sieg. than he has ever witnessed in a similar undertaking, and this is the third industry of the kind with which he has been identified.

W. C. HEINLE DEAD

Passed Away Sunday in Bellevue Hospital in New York.

Former Senator William C. Heinle, for years a resident of Bellefonte, well known as a lawyer and an active figure in Democratic political circles, died in the Bellevue Hospital, in New York City, last Sunday, at noon. He had been in New York since May 27th, going there immediately after the adjournment of the last term of court. He expected to return to Bellefonte on May 30th in time to deliver a Memorial Day address at a nearby town. He finally was taken ill and at the instance of his daughter, Miss Bettie Heinle, of Elizabeth, N. J., he was removed to the Bellevue Hospital. There his condition became worse and on Sunday he passed away. A brief message received here on Sunday afternoon told of his death. The remains were brought to Bellefonte on Monday night by Miss Bettie Heinle.

Funeral services were held from the late home yesterday morning at 10.30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. G. E. Hawes. Interment was made at the Union cemetery. Members of the Centre County bar attended in a body. The services at the grave were in charge of the Bellefonte lodge of Masons.

Mr. Heinle was born in Miles township November 30, 1849, making his age not quite 64 years. He was educated in the public schools and the Rebersburg Normal School and in 1872 and 1873 he was chosen principal of the public schools of Philipsburg. In 1875 he was made principal of the public schools of Bellefonte and later he was chosen principal of the preparatory department of The Pennsylvania State College. He read law while in Bellefonte and in 1878 he was admitted to practice at the Centre County bar. In 1880 he was elected District Attorney and in 1883 he was re-elected. On several occasions he was elected chairman of the Democratic County Committee. In 1898 he was elected to the State Senate. More recently he was a candidate for Congress. He served for a number of years as a member of the Bellefonte school board.

Senator Heinle was a natural born politician. He was a close observer and keen student of human nature and among politicians was regarded as a "good mixer." He was an eloquent campaign orator and as a result of his many years of active campaigning he was known probably in every nook and by-place in Centre and adjoining counties. He had a big heart and made friends for himself everywhere. His death removes from the community one of its best known citizens. Surviving Mr. Heinle are two children: Miss Bettie, of Elizabeth, and J. Malcolm, of Altoona.

NO JUDGESHIP CONTEST UNTIL NOVEMBER, 1915

Governor Tener Not to Appoint Successor to Orvis.

HE SERVES UNTIL 1916

Harry Keller, Clement Dale, and H. C. Quigley Republican Candidates—Judge Orvis and N. B. Spangler are Democratic Aspirants.

As a result of legislation at Harrisburg the term of Judge Orvis will be extended until the first Monday in January, 1916. No temporary vacancy will occur to be filled by appointment by the Governor. The successor to Judge Orvis will be elected at the general election in November, 1915. A lively contest among both Republicans and Democrats is indicated for the primaries to be held several months in advance of the election. The Republican candidates will be Harry Keller, Clement Dale and H. C. Quigley. On the Democratic side the candidates will be Judge Orvis and N. B. Spangler.

Ordinarily the term of Judge Orvis would expire at the close of the year 1914. This would have necessitated electing his successor in November of that year. The constitution provides that judges shall be elected in odd-numbered years. This fact rendered it necessary to amend the constitution to cover cases similiar to that of Judge Orvis or have the Governor appoint successors to serve one year until judges might be elected in an odd-numbered year.

Among many persons the belief has prevailed that Governor Tener would appoint a Judge for Centre County to serve from the first day of January, 1915, to the first Monday in January, 1916. "The Republican" several days ago wrote to the Legislative Reference Bureau, at Harrisburg, asking for some definite statement in regard to this point. A reply received yesterday explained that an amendment to the constitution [illegible] by the Legislature of 1911 and also by the present Legislature. This amendment will be submitted to the people at the polls in November, next. Ratification of the amendment at the polls makes the amendment immediately effective. The Legislative Reference Bureau, after explaining the status of the amendment in question, concluded with this further explanation:

"Inasmuch as the term of Hon. Ellis L. Orvis, president judge of the 49th Judicial District, being Centre County, expires on the first day of January, 1915, and this being an odd-numbered year, he will continue to hold his office until the first Monday of January of the even-numbered year, 1916."

With the constitution so amended no one candidate in either party will have any unfair advantage over another and all will enter the primaries in the spring of 1915 on an equal footing. On the Republican side it will be a three-cornered skirmish for the nomination. Harry Keller has informed friends that he is actively in the field and that he positively will be a candidate at the primaries regardless of who may be his Democratic opponent. Clement Dale has made no announcement of his candidacy, but among his friends it is generally accepted that he is an aspirant and that he expects to make a conscientious effort to win. H. C. Quigley has informed his friends that he aspires to the judgeship and they anticipate that he will exert himself to the utmost to capture the nomination.

The "Democratic Watchman" several weeks ago made it known that N. B. Spangler was shaping his lines to go after the Democratic nomination in opposition to Judge Orvis. For a year or more friends of Mr. Spangler have regarded him as a receptive candidate, but more recently, it is understood, he has sounded active Democrats from over the county as to how they would view his candidacy. Some persons profess to doubt that Judge Orvis will go after another term. This is not the prevailing belief in Democratic circles, however. Most of his friends and supporters accept it as settled that he will be a candidate and for this reason a first-class fight for the nomination is looked for.

To Pay Semi-Monthly.

Saturday of last week marked the last regular monthly pay day with the Pennsylvania Railroad. Beginning with next month the railroad company will pay the men twice each month, as required by a recently enacted law.

EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL

Two More Essays on Evil Results from Use of Intoxicating Liquors.

"The Republican" recently published two of the essays entered some weeks ago in the contest held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. This week we publish two additional essays, one by Samuel Waite and the other by Mary Fleming. The essays follows:

(By Mary Fleming.)

The Effect of Alcohol Upon the Nervous System.

The first symptom which shows that the nerves are disturbed by drinking alcoholic liquor is the quickened action of the heart and with it, the dilation of the blood vessels. The face is flushed and there is a glow over the skin, because the nerves which regulate the size of the blood vessels are partially paralyzed by the alcohol. The tiny blood vessels of the brain are dilated and the nerve cells are stimulated. The brain may become more active, thoughts flow more rapidly, and the speech become more fluent. But such activity is only an indication of dis turbance of the natural condition of the body. The power of right thinking is diminished and the fluent speech in a short time tends to become lacking in good sense.

The parts of the brain used in the higher processes of thoughts and reasoning seem to be the most delicate and therefore most easily injured. Investigation has shown that it is these delicate parts of the brain which are first injured by alcohol. Thus, the common observation that alcohol impairs first the higher function of the mind finds it's confirmation and explanation in discoveries made by the miscroscope concerning the changes which alcohol may cause in the actual structure of the brain.

The effect of wine sometimes seen at a social dinner where those who have taken moderate amounts begin to grow talkative, excitable and hilarious represents an unnatural state of the nervous system. Such persons are really in the first stage of intoxication, which is that of mental excitement. This brief period of excitement is usually followed by the depressant or narcotic action of alcohol. It is incorrect, therefore, to call that which produces progressive paralysis of the center of the nervous system, both sensary and motor, a stimulant.

Helmholtz at the celebration of his seventieth birthday spoke of ideas flashing up from the depth of the unknown soul that lies at the foundation of every truly creative intellectual production, and closed his account with theses words: "The smallest quantity of alcoholic beverages seems to frighten them away." Some people imagine that after the use of alcohol they can do things more quickly, that they are brisker and sharper, but experiment shows that they are slower and less accurate.

To quote Leander Bruton, M. D., of London, England, it produces progressive paralysis of the judgment and this begins with the first glass. Men say, and do, even after drinding a single glass of liquor, what they would not say or do without it and therefore it clearly affects the brain and diminishes self-control. The self-control, which is the most difficult of the human faculties, and the last to be fully attained, is the first to be weakened by alcohol. In this fact lies the danger of the use of alcohol as a beverage. For example, some men intend to take only one drink on some social occasion. But that one drink so weakens their mastery of themselves that they drink glass after glass. Others set out to use alcoholic drinks moderately every day. But usually as time passes they allow themselves increasing limits. Self-control weakens under the repeated contact of alcohol with the brain cells. The trembling of the hands when attempting to hold them perfectly quiet and a lack of power to stand erect without any swaying of the body, are sometimes seen even in moderate drinkers. The country of Sweden in 1905 experimented with her soldiers to learn whether alcohol helped them to shoot better. On several different days each man was given four tablespoonfuls of brandy, and they were then ordered to shoot at a mark. The result was that they hit the mark only two thirds as many times in thirty shots as upon the days when no brandy was given them. The trials were made under varying conditions several times a day, and the result was always the same. The nervous system of a dog or a cat is very similar to that of man, and is acted upon by drugs much in the same way as that of man. Alcohol given to dogs soon changes their character even when the quantity fed them is small. They become timid, irritable, nervous, and cross. They are so easily frightened that the sound of whistles and bells in the distance causes them to yelp and howl in an excited manner.

Instead of responding to crossness they sometimes snap viciously at the hand put out to pet them. The continued use of alcohol, even in such light drinks as that of beer, is known to have a weakening effect on the nervous system and to render it more liable to disease. The person most generally attacked by sunstroke and heat stroke are users of alcoholic drinks. Of seventy persons killed by sunstroke in recent years, it is known that all but seven used intoxicating drinks. The soldiers in Austria are not allowed to carry any brandy during warm weather.

Alcohol and the Human Body.

One of England's greatest prime ministers said, "The first duty of the statesmen is the health of the people" and one of our own statesmen asserts that "the greatest asset of this nation is the health of its citizen." If these opinions of noted statesmen are believed to be true, then it is also true that a knowledge of how to overcome the use and effects of those things which injure the human body should be learned. Science has taught how to conquer many diseases and habits of mankind but the overcoming of the greatest habit, the use of alcohol, it has left unsolved. While it is possible for some persons to drink small amounts of liquor daily for many years without apparent injury to themselves, yet in the end a weakness of some kind is usually found in their body. Their heart is the first organ to be attacked by the alcohol in the liquors. Much fatty tissue is formed and seriously interferes with the heart's power of contraction. Again the ventricles may be much enlarged and not able to expand enough to pump the blood forward. Such condition of the heart may cause what is commonly known as heart failure. After alcohol by various means reaches the heart it is sent to all parts of the body. The blood next becomes affected. The blood is so attacked that the drinker becomes warm, caused by the heat being driven to the surface of his body by the alcohol. It has for a long time been known that the person who drinks steadily when exposed to a contagious disease is much more likely to become ill than the person who never touches the liquor. It has been lately found out white blood corpuscles which destroy disease germs, are stupefied by alcohol and thus prevented from doing their work. Soon after the alcohol gets into the blood it attacks the brain. The effects of alcohol upon the brain need scarcely to be mentioned, for almost every day one sees a drunken man. He talks much more than usual and utters those secrets which he does not want anyone else to know; his actions lead people to think him to be crazy and loses his entire sense of careful judgment. This state of a drunkard is known as Delirium Tremens.

The mind cannot be strong and sound when the brain cells are being constantly injured by large daily doses of beer, wine, or whiskey. Numbering the cells of the brain or affections then, in any way, by alcoholic drinks always has some influence on the mind. Thus we find that the report of the Commissioners of various insane asylums show that nearly one fourth of the men confined in them owe their insanity to alcohol. This is not only the case in our own country but in other countries as well. The reports of the Lunatic Asylum in Ireland state that the most frequent causes of insanity of those admitted is intemperance. If the drinking of alcoholic liquors would only affect the bodies of the persons who do the drinking, the use of alcohol would not be condemned so strongly as it is. But this is not the case. The use of alcohol by a parent so affects his nature that these effects are transmitted to the children. This fact alone should condemn the use of alcoholic liquors. Many children who are so bad that they might be classed as criminals are not themselves responsible for this natural tendency. It can in many cases, authorities declare, be traced back to a parent who used strong drink in excess.

The easiest way to tell a drunkard is by the effect of alcohol upon the skin. Repeated indulgence in the use of alcoholic drinks makes the skin of the face puffy, and may give to it a blotched appearance so characteristic of the confirmed drunkard. Alcohol enlarges the arteries and capillaries of the skin, and thus makes the face red, and in cold weather cools the body very rapidly, because so much of the warm blood is brought to the surface. In health seventy five per cent of the heat leaving the body is lost by passing off from the capillaries of the skin. The use of alcohol may increase this loss of heat by ten per cent. The shivering fits on recovery from drunkenness, which frequently occur, are due to the fact that the body has lost a considerable amount of heat. The lowering of the temperature of the body by alcoholic drinks may result in death. Books containing many chapters could have been written on this important subject of "Alcohol and the Human Body" and in all of the books which one might read, he would be unable to find a single instance where alcohol does not injure the body. Only the common effect of alcohol upon the most important parts of our body we have tried to point out, and beyond a doubt these effects are so directly opposed to the enjoyment of life, that without a moment's thought, the use of alcohol liquors should be forbidden.

Water Mark on Paper May Decide Eccentric Woman's Will.

A man in a broad-brimmed soft felt hat with a way of soothing the letter "r" when he speaks will walk into the office of the Remington Typewriter Company, in a day or two, says the New York Sun, ask for Archie Butler, take out from his inner breast pocket a worn fold of paper and say:

"Here is the original of Mrs. Caroline Cloth's will. Just look at that watermark and tell me if the will's a forgery. The disposition of $1,000,000 depends on your answer."

Mr. Butler, who has handled typewriter paper and supplies for years, will be ready for the stranger. He expects to be able to make affidavit that the paper on which the will is written was not put on the market until two years after the date of the will. If he does so, there may be an indictment or two for forgery down in Shelby County, Tennessee.

"W. S. & B. Regent Linen, made in U. S. A.," is given as the mark wrought in the sheets on which Mrs. Cloth's will—known as the Clarendon will—is written. The will is dated in 1898. But Mr. Butler says the Remington Typewriter Company, formerly Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict, "W. S. & B," did not market paper so stamped until 1900. Prior to 1900 the watermark read "Regent Linen W. S. & B." and sometimes "Regent Linen W. S. & B. made in U. S. A." Not only did the words "Regent Linen" come first, but the character of the lettering used in the watermark was slightly different.

The Clarendon will had been thought to be valid until the question of watermark was looked into. It had even been admitted to probate. Mrs. Cloth's only heirs, Dr. John M. Shaller and his sister, of Denver, and half a dozen cousins in Renish, Bavaria, had conceded the validity of the will and withdrew a contest they had filed.

Everything pointed to clear sailing for F. Bruce Garrett of Memphis, who would inherit $250,000 under the document, but Miles S. Buckingham, business agent of the strange woman who starved to make a million, wasn't satisfied. He wrote to the Remington company about the watermark, got the answer that the paper used must have been got later than 1898, and sent Caruthers Ewing, his lawyer, North with the will in his pocket.

It all goes back to the woman of 66, who lived in a splendid, old-fashioned mansion at 479 South Front Street, Memphis, and who died a year ago yesterday after shutting herself up for 30 years, shunning every friend she had in the world and existing on $1 a day—never more—that she might increase the $200,000 her husband, Herman Cloth, had willed to her. When they opened the windows and let light into her house last summer they found stacks of high-grade bonds in the clothes presses.

At first there seemed to be no kin and the State of Tennessee sought to escheat the $1,000,000 she left. Under the law it would have gone to the public schools. Then Dr. Shaller and his sister were found in Denver and a search in Europe discovered the half-dozen cousins there. But before steps could be taken to divide the fortune, the Clarendon will came to light.

Colored Man Marries While Women.

An Altoona exchange says: The announcement made last Wednesday that a marriage license had been granted to Charles Knox, the colored pugilist, and Miss Hazel Elizabeth Duffy, a white girl, both of Altoona, was generally received by the citizens of Altoona, white and colored, with mixed feelings of anger and disgust.

The license was issued at the court house at Holidaysburg Wednesday and about the court house it was the general topic of conversation. The clerk in charge of the marriage license department in the prothonotary's office was unwilling to grant the license, but was compelled to do so, the laws of the state of Pennsylvania permitting the intermarriage of whites and blacks.

Knox is a well known pugilist who has appeared in the ring in Altoon on a number of occasions, while the young woman who signified her intention of becoming his wife, resides in the same house with Knox at 2324 Tenth avenue.

The recent spectacle of Jack Johnson and the white girls he procured and married, caused considerable comment in Altoona and the enactment of a similar affair in that city caused many expressions of sentment adverse to the government of a state that will permit such unions.

Record Price for a Calf.

What is believed to be the largest price ever paid for a calf in this state and possibly in the United States, has just been received by John Artman, of Fairmount farm, Middletown, who sold King Pontiac Alcartra Pietje, a six week's old Holstein bull calf, to Dr. B. B. Hand, of Scranton, for $3,000. The sire of the calf is the $10,000 bull, King Segris Pontiac Alcartra, whose dam, E. K. Alcartra, has a record of over 20 pounds of butter in seven days and produced over 15,000 pounds of milk in a year. The dam of the calf is Fairmount Zerma Segris Pietje. She produced 35.61 pounds of butter in seven days, the junior four-year-old world's record.

A Tantalizing Arctic Dream.

Speaking on the subject of his three years' expedition to the icy regions of northeast Greenland, Captain Mikkelsen told of his dreams of sandwiches. When the food supply was giving out, said the explorer, the members of the expedition dreamed of food at night. This is not an uncommon experience among those who have had, from various causes, to go short of the fuel necessary to keep the power going in the human machine, as various records testify. For much the same reason the troubled sleep of the toper is visited toward morning by visions of cooling beverages.

The explorer related that one night he dreamed of a large plate of "beautiful sandwiches," but when he approached them he found that they were inclosed with glass, and he could not get at them. Another time he saw in a dream a plate of sandwiches covered with a newspaper, but when he took away the newspaper he found another one and still another and could never get to the food.—London Globe.

Wedded to a Vase.

Not long ago considerable commotion was caused in the Chinese city of Hankow when the attractive and popular daughter of a prominent Chinese official was married with great pomp and ceremony to a large red vase which was supposed to represent a deceased bridegroom who had died a few years before his marriage, whereupon his grief stricken bride elect declared that she would never marry any one else, but would devote herself as a widow for the rest of her life to the family of her husband. In order to do this, however, it was necessary that she should legally belong to that family, and so the strange ceremony with the vase was gone through with to enable her to become a member of the family. Since then it has been suggested that an arch should be built in the city in order to commemorate the devotion of the young girl to the husband she never had.—Chicago Tribune

The Senses of the Word "Lady."

"She is a lady in every sense of the word!" exclaimed Blifkins.

"Then she is the most remarkable woman that ever lived," replied Johnson.

"What do you mean? Aren't there plenty of ladies in the world?"

"You, but not in every sense of the word. For instance, if the woman is what you say, she is not only a woman of good family or of good breeding and refinement, but she is also, according to the dictionaries, 'a sweetheart (local United States); a slate measuring about sixteen inches broad by ten long, the calcareous apparatus in the cardiac part of the stomach of the lobster, the function of which is the trituration of food.' And if she is all that her fortune is made in the museum line."

After that it was noted that Blifkins usually pruned down the remark to "she is a lady," simply.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Right and Left Handed Plants.

Do you know that there are right handed and left handed plants? An English investigator, R. H. Compton has thought the matter curious and interesting enough to make it the subject of extended investigation and has reported on it to the Cambridge Philosophical society. He observed eight varieties of two rowed barley to determine the ratio of rights and lefts. In the first, leaves of seeds of different varieties and of the various kernels from the same individual spikes, and found that among 12,401 seedlings 7,237, or 58.36 per cent, had the first leaf twisted to the left. A variety of millet showed an excess of left handed seedlings, as was also the case with oats. In the case of corn the ratio was almost unity, and there was apparently "no inheritance of right and left handedness as such."—Scientific American.

Stretching.

"My doctor," said the robust man, "is almost a fanatic on stretching. When you wake up in the morning he advises you to take a good, long stretch with the hands as far out sideways as possible, then over the head as far as you can reach. At the same time stretch the feet and stretch upward as high as you can. These simple movements equal a course in gymnastics and should be indulged in after any long period of sitting."—National Magazine

Economical.

"Mother said she thought you were extravagant, Tom, but I proved you were not."

"You darling! How did you do that?"

"Told her you were with me two hours last night and only kissed me once."

How Straw Is Used In Japan.

Nothing is wasted in Japan. Uses to which straw is put after the thrashing season are seemingly endless. It is converted into bags for grain, shoes for the feet, raincoats for the body, roofs for the houses, paper mats, screens, beds and numerous other articles.

Her Share.

"What have you done for the betterment of mankind?" asked the scornful female person.

"Me?" answered the plump and widowly looking one. "I have been a better half to no fewer than three of them."—New York Press.

Summer Orchard Inspections.

The inspectors of the Division of Zoology, of the Department of Agriculture, under the direction of Prof. H. A. Surface, have completed their schedules of Public Demonstrations, and have also completed their spring visits to the Supervision Orchards. They are now taking up the inspection of orchards in the different parts of the State where this has not already been completed.

It is the plan of State Zoologist Surface to see to it that this service is carried to everyone without charge. The inspectors are instructed to complete a township at a time, traveling from place to place and inspecting every cultivated tree, shrub, bush or vine to determine what pests are present and to inform the owners of their presence and how to get rid of them.

This careful work has resulted in the discovery of some very important pests where they were not suspected, and, consequently, in their prompt removal and suppression. It has already saved the State many times what it cost, besides the additional instruction in orcharding, which is resulting in the development of fruit growing throughout the entire State of Pennsylvania. In the future we shall hear more and more of the improvements in the quality of our fruits. Fruit growers are learning to recognize the fact that quality must stand before quantity, and fruit cannot be sold in quantity unless they have the quality. Professor Surface is demonstrating in his own orchard how to improve the vigor of trees and produce crops in a year like this when the crop is generally short elsewhere. His heavy setting of peaches on his trees at present is the subject of much favorable comment by the many members of the Legislature and State officers who have recently visited his orchard. The methods which he has worked out and successfully practiced are carried by the inspectors and demonstrators to the fruit growers in all parts of the State, and he is doing more than any other one man to put horticulture upon its best footing in this Commonwealth.

The inspectors have nothing to sell, neither do they make any charge for their services. They do not oblige any man to treat his trees, but they tell him what pests are present and how to treat them. They answer all questions within the scope of their work, but do not stop long in any one place.

No person should be deceived by the bogus or fake tree man who attempts to pass as one of the State's orchard inspectors. Such a person is after money, and if his scheme is watched, this may be discovered soon. The inspectors are provided with certificates of appointment stamped with the seal of the State of Pennsylvania and signed by the Secretary of Agriculture and Economic Zoologist. The horticulturists of Pennsylvania are recognizing more and more the value of this work and calling for the service more frequently and emphatically than ever before.

Judge Garman a Candidate.

A WilkesBarre despatch says that intimates of Judge John M. Garman admit that the requests of Col. James M. Guffey, Senator Hall, Walter E. Ritter, of Williamsport; ex-Judge Gordon, of Philadelphia; ex-Congressman Mutchler, of Easton, and other Democrats of the state, have made an impression on Judge Garman, and that he will be a candidate for United States senator to oppose the Palmer-Guthrie faction choice if the primary bill passes.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once. We just want you to give D.D.D. a trial. That will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.

The "Dandy Horse."

The father of the bicycle tribe, the "dandy horse," was invented in 1818 by Baron von Draise of Paris. It consisted of two wheels about thirty inches in diameter running one in the wake of the other and connected by a beam of wood, upon which, halfway from each end, was a saddle or perch, an arm rest in front completing the machine. It was propelled by kicking the ground with the right and left foot alternately. It was from such a crude affair that the modern bicycle was slowly evolved.

Dickens' Names.

One can meet the famous names of fiction as well as history in one's daily walks, even the most improbable of them. Take Dickens' works, for instance. Snodgrass was once a common enough name in England, and in America bearers of it still abound. Winkles can be found in various parts of the country, and at Eastbourne one can see a tombstone inscribed to the memory of Samuel Weller. But most curious of all is the case of Stiggins, for that name for a canting humbug is really a corruption of Stigand, the pious archbishop who crowned Harold and as such has been borne by many worthy men.—London Globe.

National Gardens.

There are two gardens of England—namely, Kent and Worcestershire. That of Ireland is usually said to be Carlow, in Leinster. Italy and Belgium are both called the garden of Europe, while that of France is Amboise, in the department of Indre-et-Loire. The garden of Italy is Sicily and of Spain Andalusia. In the east Ceylon and Burma have both received the title, and the district of India so honored is Oude. Glamorganshire is often spoken of as the garden of South Wales. To the region west of our noble Mississippi the title "garden of the world" has been given, and not without justice.—Exchange.

Pat's Remedy.

Irish wit is a well head that has never been known to run dry. Pat Maguire had been misbehaving and appeared before his commanding officer charged for the third time with drunkenness.

Pat stated his side of the case with all the eloquence at his command, but the colonel was unmoved.

"Eight days in the guardhouse," he said sternly.

But in writing the "8" on Pat's defaulter sheet the pen splattered. Pat noticed this and leaned forward.

"Thry if 't will make a '3' anny aisier, sorr," he suggested in a persuasive whisper.

Too Successful.

They have in Berlin, or Germany rather, a law called the unfair competition law, which prevents any person from engaging in a business that may be construed under the provisions of the law as unfair in competition to others.

An English doctor came to Berlin, advertised he could cure rheumatism and cured it. He was promptly expelled at the request of the German doctors on the ground that, as he cured rheumatism, he was engaging in unfair competition with the regular physicians who could not cure the disease.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

An Order to Order.

An American invited to a Berlin function went, of course, in his evening clothes. But he wore a big decoration. Not many others were there who were not in uniform. The American's decoration attracted the notice of the dignitary holding the reception. He asked that the man should be presented to him.

"I should like to know what that decoration is," said the dignitary. "I am familiar with all the decorations of Europe at least, and I have never seen that one. What order is it?"

"Oh," answered the American. "Like it, eh? Well, sir, that's a little fancy of my own."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Our Universe of Stars.

The particular universe of stars in which we dwell is half again as large in scale as the world has been supposing. Our own sun is still youthful and keeps traveling northwardly through space at the comparatively leisurely pace of twelve miles per second, or only two-thirds the average speed of stars of its own class. The north star is not really a single star, but triple, consisting of three suns revolving about a common center. These are some of the recent discoveries of the Lick observatory, the famous graduate astronomical department of the University of California.—San Francisco Argonaut.

DON'T GIVE UP.

People are apt to "give up" a great deal too easily. After all, if you fail in one thing you still have life and health for something else. Never sit down under misfortune. Go to work at something at once. Above all, keep up your spirits, determine to succeed and work hard, and you will be up in the world again.

Language of the Austrian Army.

In the Austrian army German, Bohemian, Polish, Ruthenian, Hungarian, Slovene, Servian, Italian and Roumanian are spoken. In every regiment, of whatever nationality, the words of command are given in German. Apart from the words of command, however, a knowledge of German is not required from the rank and file. All the ordinary business of a regiment is done in the language of the men, and it is the duty of the officers to acquire a working knowledge of this "regiment speech," as it is called.

Tuneful Names of States.

There is no part of the world where nomenclature is so rich, poetical, humorous and picturesque as the United States. * * * The names of the states and territories themselves form a chorus of sweet and most romantic vocables—Delaware, Ohio, Indiana, Florida, Dakota, Iowa, Wyoming, Minnesota and the Carolinas. There are few poems with a nobler music for the ear, a songful, tuneful land, and if the new Homer shall arise from the western continent his verses will be enriched, his pages sing spontaneously with the names of states and cities that would strike the fancy in a business circular.—London Chronicle.

The Hapless Actor.

"We actor folk are a hapless lot," said David Warfield. "Ours is the only profession on this whirling mud ball that does not permit its worker to see his product. Think of it—no actor sees himself act. We work in the dark, and our intuitions and imagination must be brought to a high class of development in consequence.

"The painter sees his product—rubs out, fills in, gets it as he wants it. The writer scans his words, changes, adds, and so on through all the varied crafts and professions. The actor alone is hapless. He cannot see that which he creates. And some of us," he added grimly, "are fortunate in this respect."—New York Tribune.

An Old London Lord Mayor's Show.

Lord mayor's shows in the past were much better fun than they are nowadays. What have we now so exhilarating as the "triumphs" of John Leman's year, 1616? They included a Dutch fishing smack on wheels catching real live fish, Arion on a huge dolphin, the king of the Moors on a golden leopard. Truth, Honor and a number of other virtues drawn by mermen and mermaids, a lemon tree (in allusion to the lord mayor's name) with the five senses seated by it, and an angel on horseback stirring up the dead Lord Mayor Walworth with a pole to sing the praises of the live mayor.—London Mail.

Time and the Rotating Earth.

It has required all the science of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries to produce the perfected watches and chronometers of today, but even they are so variable that they would soon be of no use if they were not constantly corrected by astronomical observations. Man has come back to the point where he began in the measurement of time. The rotating earth is his only standard, and the entire time system of the globe is based upon the tireless watching of the astronomers, who time the passage of the stars over the meridian to the fraction of a second and by electricity flash the news that sets the watches and clocks of the civilized world.—New York Journal.

"All Clear Gain!"

The earliest recorded royal marriage at St. James', says Archdeacon Sinclair in "The Chapels Royal," was that of William and Mary, in 1677. The bride was very reluctant, for she had set her heart on a handsome young Scots lord, and she wept for two days when her destiny was announced. Charles II., who was present at the wedding, "covered the unwillingness of the bride with sprightly remark." When William endowed his bride with all his worldly goods he put a handful of gold and silver coins on the book, whereupon Charles told his niece to gather it up and put it all in her pocket, for it was all clear gain.

A Poor Prophet.

Conan Doyle told of an experience which he had when leaving school. His teacher must have been one of those noble old Romans such as Thackeray describes as roaring at young Pendennis when the major, his uncle, called to take the boy away. When Conan Doyle had finished his course in school the head master called him aside and, after eying him with ominous disfavor, spoke to him in measured tones as follows: "Doyle, I have known you now for seven years, and I know you thoroughly. I am going to say something which you will remember in after life. Doyle, you will never come to any good!"—Bookman.

HOARDING.

Hoarding is not only an economic mistake, but an economic crime as well. It is, in fact, a survival of the evil days of maladministration. It comes down to us from the time when nearly all governments were conquerors which considered themselves entitled to plunder their subjects. Thus hoarding is founded upon distrust of the government.

Made Her Wise.

Angry Purchaser—Didn't you tell me that you had got as many as twelve eggs in one day from those eight hens you sold me? Poultry Raiser—Yes, ma'am. Angry Purchaser—Then why is it that I'm never able to get more than two eggs from them and sometimes not so many in one day? Poultry Raiser—I don't know, ma'am, unless it's because you look for eggs too often. Now, if you look for them only once a week, I feel quite positive that you will get just as many eggs in one day as I did.—Pearson's Weekly.

Three Strokes Mean Paralysis

Marie is putting in her spare time mastering shorthand. The other night she was practicing on the word "neuralgia." Marie's sister, an expert stenographer, and their landlady, who says shorthand is Greek to her, were in the room. The landlady was sewing and absorbed in her work.

"Three strokes is 'neuralgia,' isn't it?" asked Marie, intending that her sister should answer.

"Why, no, silly," exclaimed their landlady, looking up from her sewing; "that's paralysis."—Indianapolis News.

The Lawyer Had No Such Scruples.

A town character who had been in trouble with the police many times was arrested recently on a minor criminal charge. The arresting officer was amazed when the fellow appeared in police court with a lawyer prepared to make a defense. Finally his case was called, and the judge asked:

"Prisoner, are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Let my lawyer plead not guilty for me, judge," was the reply. "I ain't got the nerve."—Kansas City Star.

The "Suicide Symphony."

Frederick Nietzsche agreed with those who found no inspiration in music. Indeed, he regarded music as a nerve poison and declared that some music, particularly that of Wagner and Tschaikowsky, deranged the minds of many who heard it. Tschaikowsky killed himself after completing his famous "Sixth Symphony," which, as several others have died by their own hands after playing it, has come to be known as the "suicide symphony."—Chicago News.

An Expensive Luxury.

A New York essayist and critic said at the Players' club:

"Poetry is delightful. But poets are so very poorly paid. I know a millionaire who has a beautiful, golden haired stenographer. The girl said to her employer the other day:

"'I am going to get married, sir, and I am going to marry a poet.'

"'Dear me!' said the millionaire. 'Then you will leave us, eh?'

"'No, sir,' she replied. 'I shall not leave you, but I shall need more pay.'"—New York Tribune.

Curious Family Tree.

Among the curiosities of the New palace, Potsdam, Germany, is a genealogical tree showing the name of King David engrossed at the root of it, with that of the kaiser at the top, the descent being traced through his mother's family. According to this genealogy, the reigning house of Great Britain is descended from David through the eldest daughter of Zedekiah, who fled to Ireland in charge of Prophet Jeremiah and married Heremon, king of Ulster.

What Ailed the Speech.

At the close of one of the sessions in the trial of Warren Hastings when most of those engaged had gathered in the anteroom Dr. Parr stalked up and down the room in his pedantic, pompous way, growling out praises of the speeches of Fox and Sheridan, but saying not a word about Burke's. Burke, sensitive at this omission and anxious for some commendation from the great authority, could at last contain himself no longer and burst out:

"Doctor, didn't you like my speech?"

"No, Edmund," replied Dr. Parr, calmly eying his excited questioner. "Your speech was oppressed with metaphor, dislocated by parentheses and debilitated by amplification!"

Illustrious Shoemakers.

Shoemaking is a calling which has given the world some very great men. One authority asserts that the majority of cobblers have exceptional brains, that their attitude when stooping over their work tends to a cranial development in the part where the intellectual faculties are seated. Some one has written a book on illustrious shoemakers. In it are Sir Cloudesley Shovel, Gifford the Terrible, Bloomfield, author of the well known "Farmer's Boy;" Carey, the orientalist; Admiral Myngs, George Fox, founder of the Society of Friends; John Kitto, the Biblical scholar, and Sturgeon, the electrician. The list of illustrious shoemakers runs into scores.

REAL SUCCESS.

Success is not so much a matter of achievement as it is a matter of rectitude. The man who is worthy to succeed has already succeeded, for in the end virtue is the only success and lack of it the only failure, and nothing, after all, is success which leaves a man at enmity with his conscience.—M. Franklin Ham.

A Woman's Triumph.

The first interview with the famous Chinese statesman, Li Hung Chang, was obtained by a woman journalist, an American, Miss Elizabeth Banks, who has related how she hurried to the Chinese diplomat before she had had her breakfast, as she had been told that her victim was an early riser. But the attendants told her that she was too late, as his excellency was about to go for a drive. American determination was unabashed.

"Please go and say to his excellency that an American woman journalist called to see him before she had had her breakfast, knowing that he was an early riser. Tell him that Americans are also early risers and that the American woman will call on him tomorrow at 7 o'clock, and if that is too late she will call the next day at 6, and if that's still too late she will come the next morning at 5, but that she must see him!"

In ten minutes the attendant returned.

"His excellency will be delighted to see the American lady!" he announced.

Cheating at Cards.

Why is cheating at cards the quickest way out of society? The answer is not so much that murder and burglary are so infrequent as to offer no data for generalization as that with cheating at cards, for which there is no legal penalty, society has to protect itself and does so with characteristic cruelty. One of the men accused of the offense lived abroad for the rest of his life, and the ban was never removed. He died a couple of years ago. Another with very high connections made a sort of fight against the taboo and lived on in England until the end, but he, too, was never forgiven. The third man, who was concerned in a world famous case, is thought by many to have been wrongfully accused. He was one of the most popular and brilliant men of his time, but he has since lived quietly on his estate and never comes to London.—Manchester Guardian.

Diplomacy and the Brute.

"Listen," said the girl as the woman came in from the party at 3 o'clock in the morning and stood at the head of her bed. "Do you hear her sob, the woman above? She has been sobbing like that for an hour. Now, listen to his big, gruff voice storming at her."

"I'll put a stop to that!" the woman declared as she hurried out of the flat and on upstairs.

"Well," said the girl when she had come down again, "what did you do—threaten him with the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Wives?"

"Not at all," said the woman. "I simply rang his bell and asked him if there was anything I could do for his wife. Wasn't she ill? We could hear her crying beneath in our bedroom, I told him. He thanked me and said there was nothing I could do. But you don't hear any more sobbing, do you?"—New York Press.

Webster's Compliment.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster in speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field. On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency.

"They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement, but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.

Holmes on Domestic Economy.

The laughable and the pathetic are sometimes strangely mingled in little exhibitions of domestic economy—a plate of apples, for instance, with the defective parts cut out for the children; a small basket of homemade gingerbread, with one or two pieces of poundcake carefully disposed on the surface so as to appear to the best advantage.—"Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

Wanted the Record.

A taxicab caught fire in New York. The flames reached the gasoline tank. The two passengers, who had come a long way, tumbled out. The fire department was summoned. "Play on the meter!" shrieked the distracted driver to the firemen. "Never mind the cab, play on the meter!"—Exchange.

Larger Wants.

"Does your wife want the vote?"

"No. She wants a larger town house, a villa on the seacoast and a new limousine car every six months. I'd be pleased most to death if she could fix her attention on a small matter like the vote."—Washington Star.

SESSION FOR TEACHERS

Fourth Summer Term Opens at State College June 23.

Preparations are about complete for the opening of the six weeks' Summer Session for Teachers on June 23rd. Every previous session has shown a substantial increase in the enrollment. There is every indication that more than 600 Pennsylvania teachers will be in attendance this year.

The plans of the session are unique in that any teacher (public or private) of the Commonwealth is entitled to six weeks of instruction given, for the most part, by regular members of the college faculty upon payment of a nominal registration fee of FIVE DOLLARS. The authorities of the college believe that in view of this being a state institution receiving all of its support from the State and National governments it owes this obligation to the teachers of the State.

Forty-five instructors offer courses. Every school of the college is represented in the courses offered. Special emphasis is laid on Agriculture, Domestic Science, Education, English, Elementary School Methods, French, German, Greek, History, Latin, Manual Training, Mathematics, Public School Drawing, Public School Music, and the Sciences.

Opportunity is afforded to prepare for the Permanent State Certificate examination. College credits for an academic or master's degree may be earned under specified conditions by completing work satisfactorily. In a similar manner Summer Session students may carry on courses by correspondence and gain additional credits. Contemporaneous with the Summer Session the State Free Library Commission conducts six weeks' courses for those fitting themselves for library positions.

In addition to the instruction given by regular teachers in the Summer Session a number of special lectures and entertainments will be offered. Among those who will speak on educational topics are: Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Reed B. Teitrick; Superintendent F. W. Robbins, Lebanon; Superintendent H. H. Baish, Altoona; Superintendent Charles A. Lose, Williamsport. Miss Helen G. Betterly, of the Osterhout Free Library of Wilkes-Barre, will again be present to conduct the story telling on the front campus.

Other lectures to be delivered are: "Abraham Lincoln. Greatest of All Americans," Dr. S. Parkes Cadman; "Readings from Shakespeare," Professor S. H. Clark of the University of Chicago.

Summer work in the mountain environment of The Pennsylvania State College becomes a pleasure instead of drudgery; regular work, together with the excursions, games, illustrated lectures and entertainments provided for the recreation hours, will make up a summer outing pleasurable, profitable, economical.

Additional information concerning the Summer Session may be had by addressing the Director of the Summer Session, State College, Pennsylvania.

To Build Pontoon Bridges.

Captain William H. Brown, Lieutenants Taylor and Blackford and the men comprising Company L, Twelfth Regiment, will undoubtedly have an interesting time at this year's encampment of the Third Brigade, N. G. P. The Centre County boys will camp at Selinsgrove, leaving Bellefonte early on the morning of July 5th. The commanding officers expect to march the troops across the river on a pontoon bridge, constructed by their own men, during one of the war games. This is a novel move in the National Guard encampment and it is expected that when the two brigades march across the river in this manner that the banks of the stream will be crowded with spectators. Numerous moving picture operators will be there and the achievements of the men will later be displayed on screens in thousands of cities throughout the country.

As another special feature of the encampment arrangements have been made for an aviation detail to give flights daily during the manoeuvres. There are quite a number of men of the National Guard who are licensed aviators, and it is the plan to have them assemble at Selinsgrove, under the charge of several lieutenants, and really perform military duty above ground. This will also be an innovation in the annual encampments. A mid-air combat between groups of the aviators may be planned, but this has not been definitely decided upon.

Maj. Hastings Not Sentenced.

Major William H. Hastings, brother of the former governor, pleaded guilty in the Dauphin county court on last Thursday of felonious assault and battery with intent to kill, and sentence was deferred, the major being returned to prison. Last month Major Hastings shot at his nephew, Ross A. Hickok, because of fancied grievances, and later engaged in a pistol battle with four policemen who attempted to arrest him. Mr. Hickok and the policemen appeared against him in Court.

DROWNED AT NIAGARA

Particulars of Sad Death of Miss Violet Swift, of Philipsburg.

In our issue of last week we noted the drowning of a former Philipsburg school teacher at Niagara Falls. In receiving the message the name was confused. It develops that the unfortunate young lady was Miss Violet Swift, who had been teaching mathematics in the Niagara Falls High School during the past year. Her sister, Miss Bella, who had just completed a term as teacher in Philipsburg, was visiting at Niagara. The two sisters and a Mr. Armstrong went out on the river in an canoe on Tuesday evening. There was no indication of danger until a motor boat suddenly appeared. The swell in the water caused by the rapidly moving motor boat tipped the canoe and all three occupants were thrown into the river. Miss Violet Swift was the first to be thrown out and she never came to surface. Her sister and Mr. Armstrong struggled in the water for a short time when they were rescued by those in the motor boat. A search was made for the body of Miss Violet Swift but it was not recovered until Wednesday morning, about 10 o'clock. It was immediately shipped to Philipsburg for burial.

The unfortunate young lady was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Swift, of Philipsburg. She was a graduate of the Philipsburg High School and at the time of her death was not quite 28 years old.

Swat the fly.

The new Surveyor of the Port might at least invite the former Surveyor to occasionally drop around and see the old place.

The visitors' register at the Philadelphia Customs Office thus far fails to reveal the name of the Hon. John Noll as a social caller. Just wait a little longer.

President Wilson has also billed his message on the currency question to be delivered in person before Congress. The best of attractions soon lose their novelty.

$5,000 per year for four years means $26,000 contributed by Uncle Sam to the new Democratic boss of Centre County. No wonder some local Democrats these days get up in the morning with a pale gray taste in the mouth.

PRETTY RAW AT THAT

The appointment and confirmation of William H. Berry as Collector of Customs at Philadelphia (salary $8,000 per year) reveals Woodrow Wilson, the President, to be quite different from Woodrow Wilson, the candidate. When he canvassed the country, meeting the people face to face, Mr. Wilson gave voice to strong convictions on upholding the merit system in public office. If a man is competent and is rendering efficient service to the public, said Mr. Wilson, he should not be removed merely to make room for somebody of a different political faith. This was, of course, while Mr. Wilson was appealing for votes. As President Mr. Wilson has demonstrated that he is perfectly willing to have good, efficient men thrown out of office merely to make room for Democratic supporters. The appointment and confirmation of Mr. Berry is an apt illustration of how Mr. Wilson's teachings do not necessarily interfere with President Wilson's practices.

Collector of Customs Hill was removed from office simply to make room for Mr. Berry. Had the Democratic managers frankly admitted such to be the case few persons would have censured them, for most persons are liberal minded enough to appreciate and concede that to the victors belong the spoils. The removal of Collector Hill was represented as having been made for the improvement of the service. Laxity in administering the affairs of his office was hinted at by those hurrying along Mr. Berry's appointment. The Civil Service Reform Association instituted an investigation. Many of the members of the association were personal friends and supporters of President Wilson. Their verdict, submitted to the President, was that Collector Hill's record was absolutely clean. They protested against his removal because their investigation made quite clear that he was being forced out for political reasons, only.

Now let us see what happened. The report of the Civil Service Reform Association was duly received by the President. Orders were given to the Democratic managers in the Senate to hurry along confirmation of Mr. Berry's appointment. While the Senate was confirming Mr. Berry the President's private secretary was engaged in the act of writing to the Civil Service Reform Association, acknowledging receipt of the report on Collector Hill and blandly explaining that it had been referred to the Secretary of the Treasury. Before the letter could be mailed the Senate had responded to the President's command and had confirmed Mr. Berry.

Mr. Berry will probably make a good Collector of Customs and since some Democrat was certain to get the place he might just as well have it as somebody else. Mr. Berry is "some reformer" when it comes to pointing with horror to the misdeeds and defects of his political opponents. When it comes to getting a job for Berry, however, he seems perfectly willing to adopt the principle that the end justifies the means.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Blasted Rock Crashed into House and Falls into Woman's Bed.

What might have resulted in serious consequences was an accident in South Renovo last Friday evening about 6 o'clock says the Renovo News. Workmen who were engaged in excavating on a lot on Pennsylvania avenue where South Renovo chapel is to be erected had prepared a dynamite blast to loosen the rocks and dirt. They thought they had the blast set so that no damage would result to abutting property, but their plans miscarried and immediately after the explosion the rocks and dirt flew in all directions and a large quantity of it struck the house occupied by Rex DeLong, about 50 feet away. Several of the windows were broken on the lower floor and one large rock was carried through a window of the second story taking with it the sash, curtains and all. The big stone dropped on the bed occupied by Mrs. DeLong and her young son, which was born Thursday morning. Fortunately, however, neither mother nor child was struck by the heavy rock, but the bed was covered with dirt and glass.

The stone was so large the ladies of the house could not lift it from the bed. A smaller stone struck a post of the brass bed and bent and split it. The mother and babe have suffered no serious consequences from the effects of the shock, but that no one was injured indeed seems providential.

Veterans Extend Thanks.

At the regular meeting of Gregg Post No. 95, Dep't. of Penna G. A. R. June 14th. 1913, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the sincere thanks of Gregg Post No. 95 are hereby gratefully offered to all who contributed to the financial assistance of the Post on account of Memorial day expenses;

To the little folks for the beautiful flowers presented for the decoration of the graves of our departed Comrades;

To Professor Lukenbach and his assistants for the very appropriate singing, at the Cemetery and in the Court House;

To Captain Brown and his company, whose gallant appearance, elicited the warm approval of all;

To the Hon. Thos. L. Walters, for the able and suitable memorial address;

To our fellow citizens whose presence in the Court House gave proof of their loyalty and patriotim;

To the B. P. O. E. for the generous entertainment and refreshments provided for the Veterans at the close of the service for the day.

EMANUEL NOLL, Adjutant. S. B. MILLER, Commander.

To Transport 22,051 Veterans.

Col. Lewis E. Beitler, secretary of the Pennsylvania commission in charge of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg announced this week that the state of Pennsylvania will transport to Gettysburg at the expense of the state 22,051 veterans, who participated in the Civil war, and who are now residents of Pennsylvania, or who enlisted from Pennsylvania and are now living in other states. This also includes all Confederate veterans now living in the state who have accepted the invitation of the Pennsylvania commission.

The number of veterans to be transported to Gettysburg by other states and territories is not yet definitely known. It is expected, however, the number will exceed 25,000. The Pennsylvania commission is urging the commissions of the states to forward the number of veterans who will represent their states as quickly as possible.

Thirty-One For Two.

Thirty-one for two
Sounds rather queer to you,
But I shall soon explain
The meaning of the strain,
"Two for thirty-one"
Its easy to be done.

Two dollars is due
For the thirty and one
Events in the Chau-
Tauqua. Never a flaw
In lecture debate,
Magician so great,
Songster or band,
All are "perfectly grand"
Thirty-one events,
Full of fun and sense,
"High living" takes a fall,
Two dollars pays for all.

One of the trite and wearisome things which woman has to meet is criticism of her mode of dress. This might be justifiable if she were in the main responsible for the absurd styles and their rapidly changing character. In even so personal a matter, however, she has not been allowed freedom to choose. Man establishes the mode of dress for woman, changing the styles oftener than the seasons themselves change. Woman's clothing seems to constitute one of the many trusts with which the universe is beset. The rapid change of styles is in part of course a money making scheme designed to extract the contents of the rich man's pocket. The rich man expects his wife to be his show-piece and to make a suitable background for himself and his position in the world, and he therefore drapes her person in fine materials made in ultra-fashionable ways and hangs upon her body costly jewels which change in style almost as rapidly as does dress. The rich man does not want his wife to dress as the average woman can afford to dress. She must be adorned in a manner extraordinary to furnish the proper setting for himself, she must in some way be distinguished from the horde as the rich man's wife, hence the rapid change of styles. The woman of average means, not to look as if she belonged to another human species, must in some measure approach the prevailing style and her own male friends exact this of her in order that she may do proper credit to them.

If it is true, as has been asserted, that the styles are designed to appeal to man's passionate temperament, who is responsible but man himself? Has he not encouraged such suggestions for his own pleasure and satisfaction? Woman has ever been taught to study how to please him. He has called himself the "stronger sex." Here is a great opportunity to prove his right to the title. Let him not be overcome except by shame for his own weakness.

There is no doubt but that a more healthful, less extravagant and simpler form of dress for women is desirable and no one feels this more keenly than woman herself. Club women are already agitating the subject, but it is necessary to educate the public to the idea in that matter as in all others. It is certainly advisable and proper for woman to control so personal a matter herself, and this she will no doubt be able to do when she is permitted to have a voice in making the laws of the land. One fact is absolutely certain and that is that she has never been permitted to have a comfortable form of dress for either her work or her pleasure.

Those familiar with Mayor Gaynor's style of remark can hardly fail to catch the coarseness of the suggestion contained in the article given below. It is to be hoped that the New York Suffragists will do all in their power to place a clean-minded and just man in the position which the Mayor holds. Such troubles as were brought out by the Herman Rosenthal case and by the fact that one borough alone contains 15,000 women in the tenderloin district, are naturally to be expected from the administration of a man of such calibre. Alice Stone Blackwell's reply to him will clear up the situation to the reader.

Championing the cause of votes for women, with a diplomatic qualifying clause, Mayor Gaynor ranged from the whimsical to the serious in a talk on the subject of woman suffrage, dealing especially with militant methods and the likelihood of their being brought to this country. The Mayor is not at all alarmed about any likely militancy in America.

"I do not think that the women in this country will ever resort to the violence of the English suffragettes. Over in Great Britain there are about a million and a half women who have no man, and they are rather desperate. We have no such condition over here."

Mayor Gaynor tossed off some new epigrams on the situation:

"Is there any suffragette in the world who would not give up her principles for a nice man?"

"Mark me, as soon as the majority of the women want the vote they will get it."

"As soon as every woman has a man the women get to be very peaceful."

"I think the men of this State just laugh and rub their stomachs and say that they are perfectly satisfied for the women to vote if they want to. The trouble is that there are only a few women apparently who want to vote."

HALE AND HEARTY AT 86

Gen. John P. Taylor Pays Visit to Old Schoolmate, Rev. J. P. Hughes.

General John P. Taylor, of Reedsville, Mifflin County, eighty six years old but strong and vigorous and enjoying remarkably good health, last Friday came to Bellefonte and visited for a few hours with an old classmate at Tuscarora Academy, near Mifflin, Rev. James P. Hughes, who is in his 86th year. The two old cronies, greatly enjoying the little reunion, walked about town and greeted friends. One of the places they visited was the home of General James A. Beaver, where they chatted interestingly about war time days. General Taylor and Mr. Hughes were students at Tuscarora Academy in 1844-45. Both were able to recall lots of incidents of school days.

General Taylor was the right hand man of General Gregg on many a hard-fought field in the Civil war. It was along toward the end of the war that the General came into his present rank, but he was in command of the first brigade of Gregg's division long before that. He commanded the division at times.

In the days before the Civil war when the independent companies of the Pennsylvania militia wore about all the uniform they could get on and set the hearts of the girls to fluttering whenever they marched by with glad and gallant tread, there was a much dressed cavalry organization in Mifflin county known as the Mifflin County Dragoons. General Taylor was an officer in the picturesque company. When some of the southern states had seceded and things looked squally the Mifflin County Dragoons held a meeting at Reedsville and Lieutenant John P. Taylor offered a resolution tendering the services of the company to Governor Curtin in case its services were needed. After considerable debate the resolution was adopted. Lieutenant Taylor was one of two officers to personally convey the tender of service to the governor. It was the first made by any military organization in the state. The date of the offer was January 26, 1851.

After President Lincoln made his call for troops there was some delay about accepting the Mifflin county dragoons but they got into the service finally as Company C, First Pennsylvania Reserves calvary. Company D was made up of men largely from Lycoming county.

CARRIED OFF SAFE

Thieves Rob Loganton Postoffice Getting $67 and 7,000 Stamps.

Thieves broke into the postoffice at Loganton, near the Clinton-Centre county line, last Sunday morning, removing the iron safe, weighing 700 pounds, wheeled it on a truck stolen from the station of the Loganton and White Deer railroad to the grounds of the high school, an eighth of a mile away, and blew open the door by two explosions of dynamite. They got 7,000 stamps of different denominations and $67 in cash.

Townspeople heard the reports of the explosions, but they thought neighbors were shooting at noisy cats.

The job was not discovered until after daylight, when A. D. Kerstetter, postmaster, reached the office. The door was standing open when the postmaster appeared. As he pushed it further open deep grooves on the floor greeted his eye. These ended in the spot where the safe had stood. Other tracks in the roadway gave a clue as to the disposition of the strong box. They led to the rear of the school building, where, in the shelter of the cemented steps, the shattered safe was found.

Postoffice Inspector Pearce, of Altoona, is investigating the robbery.

Berry's Appointment Confirmed.

The Senate at Washington last Friday confirmed the appointment of William H. Berry as collector of customs at Philadelphia. Mr. Berry's nomination was made early in President Wilson's administration and had been pending in the Senate with a favorable report from a committee since May 1. Confirmation had been opposed until last week by Senators Oliver and Penrose.

A DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE

Pleasant Gap Minister's Wife Taken Unawares by Friends.

The home of Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Frum at Pleasant Gap was the scene of a delightful birthday surprise party on Tuesday. Mrs. Frum was the one in whose honor the affair was arranged. Cleverly did her husband and a number of friends plan everything and she was taken completely by surprise. She thought nothing of it when about 11 o'clock in the morning the William H. Rishels, of Lemont, stopped at the house and remarked that they thought they would rest for a little while. Her big-hearted, genial husband was laughing up his sleeve but his face betrayed nothing. A few minutes later Mrs. Emiline Noll and one or two other Pleasant Gap ladies happened along and they, too, seemed to be attracted by the shade of the Frum lawn. When several more friends dropped in Mrs. Frum suddenly became aware that something was going on and then it flashed upon her that it was her birthday anniversary. A sharp, searching look toward her husband forced a laugh which was a complete confession and then all present enjoyed a hearty laugh. Equal to the emergency Mrs. Frum acknowledged that she had been caught napping but that she would be glad to be surprised in such an agreeable manner at almost any time.

Even had her husband's guilty countenance not confirmed her suspicions that for once in his life he had not taken her into his confidence, the arrival of other guests in the next few minutes would have told the whole story. In addition to the Rishels other good friends from Lemont soon made their appearance and a few minutes later there came along a two-seated rig in which were Rev. Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Yocum, Rev. C. C. Shuey, Mrs. William V. Larimer and Dr. Yocum's little grandson. Mr. Frum was in the front yard to extend cordial greetings to each guest and see that all were made to feel perfectly at home. Inside the house the ladies busied themselves getting things in readiness for what proved to be a delicious dinner served on tables spread in the front yard.

When baskets had been unpacked it seemed as if there was an overflow of the very choicest things to eat. Dr. Yocum was seated at the head of the table, with Mr. and Mrs. Frum to his right and Mr. Shuey to his left. Standing about the table all present sang "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." Dr. Yocum asked the Divine blessing and then the order was given to test the products of a dozen or more first-class cooks. Nobody needed a second command and for an hour or more the good things disappeared in rapid order. The dinner hour was enlivened by the relating of wholesome jokes and good-natured stories. The prize story of the dinner was related by Dr. Yocum.

"One day," he said, "a lady raced up to a railroad station only to see the train puffing up the track. She was disappointed and disgusted beyond expression. As she stood there a man, heavily burdened with packages and bundles, came running along the station platform. When he saw that the train was disappearing around a curve a quarter of a mile away he stood there and cussed until he was blue in the face. The lady looked at him as he cussed and when he had run down she remarked: 'Thank you, thank you.'"

Dr. Yocum related another good story. "A lady who was not familiar with the customs at court was a guest at luncheon one day given by King Edward. She did not know that the King was particular how guests addressed him. He was eating his salad with great relish when the American lady suddenly called out to him. With a cold stare the King rebuked her. Just before the luncheon was brought to a close the King turned to her and explained that if she had anything to say to him she would be at liberty to speak. 'Its no use now,' spoke up the lady. 'Its too late. I was just trying to tell you that there was a great big green worm on your salad, but you wouldn't listen and went ahead and eat the worm. I'm sorry but you wouldn't let me tell you in time.'"

When the more substantial eatables had been disposed of somebody suggested that the cake be passed. The answer was in the form of five or six delicious layer-cakes, each one testifying to the skill of some expert cook. Lemont cakes were matched against cakes from Pleasant Gap and all were winners. The dinner was topped off with rich coffee and also cold mountain water. It was a feast long to be remembered by all who were so fortunate as to be present.

During the afternoon interesting and instructive addresses were delivered by Dr. Yocum and Mr. Shuey. Appropriate to the occasion was the keynote of their addresses, the social side of Christianity. Before the guests departed for their respective homes all arose and sang, "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

In addition to Rev. and Mrs. Frum those present included Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rishel and daughters Mary and Hazel, and son W. Irvin, Mrs. Priscilla Hazel, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Weaver, Mrs. Elmira Martz, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Townships to Get Cash.

Governor Tener has approved the Jones bill, appropriating $1,000,000 to pay the 50 per cent bonus on cash road tax in second class townships. The bill provides for the deficiency which has arisen because of insufficient appropriations by the legislature of 1911 and also for the road year ending the first Monday in December, 1912.

The governor also signed the Haggerty house bill, providing that boroughs shall elect controllers in place of the auditors who now have charge of supervision of accounts, the act to be effective upon acceptance by the borough council.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which, is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Buried at Bath, N. Y.

William B. Thomas, of Milesburg, returned home on Saturday from Bath, New York, to which place he had accompanied the remains of the late Rev. James S. Wilkes. The latter was pastor of the Milesburg Presbyterian church. His death occurred at the Bellefonte hospital on Monday of last week. Funeral services were held at Milesburg on Tuesday, with Rev. Mr. Schuyler, of Centre Hall, in charge. Professor Crockett, of State College, read a passage of scripture, which was followed by a prayer by Rev. W. K. Harnish, of Lemont. Rev. Dr. G. E. Hawes, of Bellefonte, gave a brief talk and the services were brought to a close with a prayer by Rev. W. F. Carson, who resides at State College. On Wednesday the remains were taken to Bath, the old home of the deceased, where interment was made on Thursday. Mr. Wilkes was born in Bath on October 20, 1868, making his age at the time of his death 44 years, 7 months and 20 days. After attending the public schools at Bath he became a student at Auburn Seminary and graduated from Hamilton College. Prior to locating at Milesburg he had served as pastor at Silver Lake, Susquehanna County and Nicholson and Stevensville, Bradford County. On June 16, 1897, he was married to Miss Fannie Stratton, of Brackney, Susquehanna County, who survives with four small children, Harriet, William, Robert and Thomas. Surviving also are his mother, three brothers and four sisters. During the short time he had resided at Milesburg Mr. Wilkes had won for himself the good will and esteem of the people of that community and the news of his death was received with many expressions of sincere regret.

AT THE 1913 CHAUTAUQUA.

Mr. Henry Such has, with his violin, won the praise of half the crowned heads of Europe. His startling public career began at the age of eight. Today, in every large city at home and abroad, he has been singled out as a musician who uses his brains as well as his poetic temperament to play with. Mr. Such is master of the fairy-like and delicate, and of the tremendously powerful in compositions, too. With Miss Viola Brodbeck, the great Philadelphia soprano, he gives one of the most compellingly artistic entertainments of the Chautauqua program.

DR. CONNER INSTALLED

New President of Dickinson Seminary Warmly Received.

Last Thursday was a great day for Williamsport Dickinson seminary. The afternoon and evening were devoted to the ceremonies incident to formally inducting into office Rev. Benjamin C. Conner, D D., as president. The program opened with a piano solo by Miss Cornelie Ehren, and prayer by Rev. Emory M. Stevens.

Greetings were extended from several institutions of learning. The first speaker was Rev. J. M. Meeker, D. D., Ph. D., president of Centenary college institute, Hackettstown, N. J., who delivered a splendid address, dwelling particularly upon the fact that it is not the text book but the teacher who impresses himself upon the mind of the pupil, and warning Dr. Conner that the pupil is a most observant creature.

The second address was by Rev. Charles D. Skinner, D. D., president of Cazenova seminary, of Cazenova, N. Y., who extended the greetings of his school and welcomed Dr. Connor to the high calling of head of a great family.

Professor O. R. Super, Ph. D., of Dickinson college faculty, extended greetings from that institution. Professor Super was the head of the language department to Dickinson seminary when Dr. Conner was the head of the department of science, thirty-four years ago, and in addition to bringing the greetings, the best wishes and congratulations of Dickinson college, he brought recollections and reminiscences of days at the seminary before the present student body and a great majority of its faculty had been born.

Professor Fred Lewis Pattee, Ph. D., of State College, voiced the greetings of Penn State and told of the great love and respect they have for Dr. Conner, who made possible the Methodist church in which the members of the student body of that denomination now worship.

The evening program opened with a vocal solo by Miss Florence Vincent and prayer by Rev. S. B. Evans. Bishop William Burt telegraphed that he had missed connections at Elmira and could not be present to deliver an address for which he was scheduled.

Charles E. Bennett, vice president of the board of directors, delivered the charter of the school and the keys of the institution into the keeping of President Conner.

Dr. Conner responded with his inaugural address in which he reviewed the history of the school and its growth from a property valuation of $25,000 and a faculty of four to a property valuation of $250,000 and a faculty of twenty-four people. He dwelt upon the value of secondary schools and quoted statistics showing the great army of youths who fought in the Civil war.

The period of the secondary school life is the period of moral choice in the boy or girl and a period in which they should be under the best of influence.

Dickinson seminary from the beginning has stood for thorough, sound scholarship, and that policy will be continued. The character of its work is recognized in all colleges to which it sends students.

The festivities concluded with a banquet, which was one of the most largely attended in the history of the school.

Mrs. Emiline Bedell Dead.

Mrs. Emiline Bedell, died on Monday of last week at the home of a son, Orlando Fredericks, near Philipsburg. Her death resulted from a stroke of paralysis, at the age of 65 years. She was a resident of Bellefonte for over fifty years, but the past three years had resided with her son. She was twice married, her second husband, Jacob Bedell, having died about fourteen years ago.

Two sons survive: Orlando Fredericks and Late Bedell; one brother, David Hampton, of near Bellefonte; and a sister, Mrs. Elmira Bixler, of Hawk Run.

Took Her at Her Word.

Harriet met Ethel one morning. "Do you know that every one is talking about the way you let Fred Mason kiss you on the links yesterday?"

"Well," replied Ethel, "I couldn't help it."

"Couldn't help it!" exclaimed Harriet in surprise. "What do you mean?"

"Well, I was just teeing off," explained Ethel, "and he asked me if he could have just one kiss. I yelled 'Fore!' and he took them."—Detroit Free Press.

It Won Him Over.

An actor said at the Lambs, in New York:

"Charles Frohman in my younger days once offered me a very little part at a very little salary. Out of work as I was, I hesitated to accept the proposition, but Frohman, clapping me jocularly on the back, won me over with the remark:

"'Come, come, now, don't be a fool. You know well enough that a small role is better than a whole loaf.'"—New York Tribune.

What English Girls Read.

An enthusiastic young girl was trying to persuade an elderly aunt to borrow "The Sorrows of Satan" from a seaside lending library. "No, my dear," said the aunt faintly, "it is too deep." On the other hand, a working girl, choosing a book from the club library, told the librarian that she loved Mrs. Henry Wood's novels. "There is always a country house," she said, "with a courtyard, and in the courtyard is a well, and at the bottom of the well there's bones." It would be impossible to describe the thrill of enjoyment and emotion with which these words were said.—Mrs. Frederick Harrison in Nineteenth Century.

The Inspector's Advice.

The late Inspector McCluskey ("Gentleman George" or "Chesty George"), as he was known on the New York police force, was a good friend and a bad enemy. The inspector, while by no means vindictive, did not readily forget an injury, and one day an elderly millionaire who had injured him in the past rushed excitedly into his office and shouted:

"McCluskey, one of your men just called me a spavined old mule! What are you going to do about it?"

"Do? Why, nothing," the inspector answered. "I can't patch you up. I haven't the knowledge. Go and consult a vet!"—Exchange.

Maps as Banknotes.

I knew of a curious instance of the fertility of the East Indian native brain. A boy had attended school and been instructed to some extent in geography. Struck evidently by the similarity of a colored map to the banknotes widely circulated in Rhodesia, he cut out a portion of the former and obtained from a less sophisticated neighbor the sum of £1 in gold, explaining that he required the money in exchange for his "note." His obliging victim, thinking perhaps that the "note" seemed hardly up to sample, endeavored to re-exchange it with European. The result was, of course, disastrous to the perpetrator of the fraud. —Empire Review.

Ivory For Billiard Balls.

The experience of the workers who turn ivory for billiard balls has shown that, as it dries, ivory shrinks. In the case of the tusk the shrinkage is greater in width than it is in length.

The tusks of cow elephants have been found best adapted to the making of billiard balls. The tusk of the female is not so curved as that of the male, and the fine "nerve passage" is not so clearly seen.

Billiard balls are turned in the rough and kept in a warm room for a long time, sometimes as long as two years. Then, after shrinking, they are turned again and to the "true."—Harper's Weekly.

AIDS TO HAPPINESS.

It is not rare gifts that make men happy. It is the common and simple and universal gifts; it is health and the glance of sunshine in the morning; it is fresh air; it is the friend, the lover; it is the kindliness that meets us on the journey; it may be only a word, a smile, a look—it is these, one or all of them, and not any rarity of blessing, that are God's gentle art of making happy.—G. H. Morrison.

A Pathetic Suicide.

According to a Spanish writer on Japan, the most pathetic suicide recorded in the history of that country took place over eight centuries ago. "In 1181," writes Senor Gomez Carillo, "the nine-year-old emperor, Kotuku, saw his troops defeated. The child disheveled his hair, wept copiously and invoked the holy name of Buddha. When he had finished his nurse, Niidono, took him in her arms to the seashore. 'There is a lovely city beneath the bay,' she said, and then the waves covered the emperor and his nurse."

The Name Bismarck.

Few people know how Bismarck and his ancestors got their name. Bismarck is the name of one of those ancient castles a short distance from Stendal, on the road from Cologne to Berlin, in the center of the old marquisate of Brandenburg. The castle had this name because it defended the "marca," or the line where the river Biese formed a boundary in former times or mark of defense against intruders; hence the name of Bismarck.—Exchange.

The Quality of Mercy.

A notorious mountain moonshiner, familiarly known as Wild Bill, was tried before a federal court in Georgia and was adjudged guilty. Before pronouncing sentence the judge lectured the prisoner on his long criminal record and at last, informing him that the court entertained no feeling of anger toward him, but felt only unmixed pity, sentenced him to spend six years in the federal prison at Atlanta.

Bill stolidly shifted the quid of tobacco in his mouth and turned to leave the courtroom with the marshal. Once outside the only thing he said was this:

"Well, I suah am glad he wa'n't mad at me!"

Poetry Defined.

George P. Morris, the author of "Woodman, Spare That Tree," was a general of the New York militia and a favorite with all who knew him. Mrs. Sherwood in her reminiscences tells how another poet associated the general with a definition of poetry.

Once Fitz-Greene Halleck, the author of "Marco Bozzaris," called upon her in New York in his old age, and she asked him to define for her what was poetry and what was prose.

He replied: "When General Morris commands his brigade and says, 'Soldiers, draw your swords!' he talks prose. When he says 'Soldiers, draw your willing swords!' he talks poetry."

Gray Hairs In Wall Street.

"It seemed to me down in New York the other day," remarked a Clevelander who had just returned from the metropolis, "that one might almost recognize Wall street and the financial region by the number of gray haired young men you see. I had occasion to be in several offices on Wall street the other day, and I honestly believe more than half of the young men I saw had gray hair. I noticed the same thing along the street. It may have been just a coincidence, but I couldn't help wondering if they would have been gray just as soon if they had been at some other game for the last few years."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Pomp of English Mayors.

Considerable pomp attends the office of mayor in English cities. Chichester arms its chief magistrate with a gold mounted malacca cane of office, while the mayor of Guildford carries the stick presented to the borough by her majesty Queen Elizabeth. At York both the lord mayor and lady mayoress are equipped with the silver mounted oak staves which have marked their authority for centuries. Among the official retainers of the mayor of Ripon is the municipal horn blower, who every night at 9 o'clock gives three blasts upon this aged musical instrument before the mayor's residence and again at the marked cross.—London Standard.

Handsome Dogs Are Good Dogs.

In the most characteristic of English dogs, with the English bulldog as an unfortunate exception of a glaring sort, common sense principles in the canon of judging are distinctly marked. In the case of hounds any good eye can pick out the best animals. This was curiously illustrated not long since in private when an artist taken over one of the bigger kennels of foxhounds picked out the prize and pedigree dogs one after the other. He went purely by his own sense of what was strong and comely, of "strength and beauty met together," as Shelley says in a very different connection.—London Outlook.

STUDY THE SUBLIME.

Sad, indeed, is it to see how men occupy themselves with trivialities and are indifferent to the grandest phenomena, care not to understand the architecture of the heavens, but are deeply interested in some contemptible controversy about the intrigues of some of the queens of the past, are learnedly critical over a Greek ode and pass by without a glance that grand epic written by the finger of God upon the strata of the earth. —Herbert Spencer.

Delightful Surprise Party.

At David Allen's surprise party near Howard last week there were present nine children, forty-six grand-children and four great-grand-children. The party was arranged as a surprise for the old folks and proved to be an occasion long to be remembered by all present. As Mr. Allen viewed the assemblage of children, grand-children and great-grand-children he expressed his pride on being the head of such a family. There was a little excitement when Elizabeth, a daughter of Edward Allen, of Irwin, Pa., fell from a footlog into the creek, a distance of five oi six feet. Fortunately she receieved no injuries. At a seasonable hour the guests departed for their respective homes perfectly delighted with their visit.

The Growing Crops.

Reports to Bradstreet's indicate that crops, though retarded in growth by cool weather, are on the whole good, and, except in oats, there are few complaints of real moments. Winter-wheat yields in eastern Missouri, western Illinois, southwest Kansas and Oklahoma will not equal early sanguine expectations. In Missouri and Illinois yields will exceed last year, while Kansas and Oklahoma will be about equal. Harvesting is on in Kentucky, Tennessee and as far north as southern Illinois, and the crop generally is in a forward condition. In eastern Washington the wheat crop will be large.

Reports of a scare in North Dakota spring-wheat sections have their basis in a deficit in rainfall coming on a crop much of which was disked in and therefore needs plenty of moisture. The yield in that state cannot, of course, equal last year's enormous crop, but in South Dakota and Minnesota spring wheat and other small grains are in excellent condition.

Cool weather has retarded corn the country over, but stands are good, and since the warm weather following the cold snap and moisture of this week, reports from Iowa, Illinois and other large corn states are better.

Frosts along the northern tier of states have done some damage, from Michigan east to New York, to small vegetables, berries, etc., but the large staple crops are reported to be unaffected. Grapes are reported to have suffered severely in some northern New York sections.

The oats crop is a spotted one, Illinois and Missouri sending the most complaints. Still, cool, moist weather experienced in most states is not usually a bad feature for oats.

Extremely cool weather is reported in the south east of the Mississippi river, but aside from retarding growth, no injury is perceptible, and reports as a whole point to an exceptionally good condition ruling. Corn, rice and cane are doing well in the lower Mississippi valley. Boll weevil has affected the crop in some Louisiana parishes and in parts of Mississippi.

Berry crops in Washington are of record size. The apple crop will be smaller. Wisconsin will have very large fruit yields, but in Michigan the promise is not so good. Grapes are reported in poor shape in the Keuka lake district, near Rochester, N. Y., and strawberries and truck have suffered all along the frontier.

The burley tobacco crop in Kentucky promises well. Most of the plants have been set out.

AN ARCHITECTURAL MARVEL.

St. Sophia and Its Wonderful Dome That Is Said to Be Doomed.

The world would mourn were the great dome of St. Sophia to fall. There are persistent reports that the structure is in danger, that the masonry is rotten and crumbling and that the final doom of the edifice is not far off.

When it is remembered that St. Sophia was built in the sixth century, that it has for more than thirteen centuries withstood the vicissitudes of fires, earthquakes, sackings and bombardments, rain and wind, heat and cold, the marvel is that it has endured so long. Having stood through all these ages, there will be the keenest regret if it finally yields to the destructive forces of nature.

St. Sophia is often spoken of as the grandest monument of Christian architecture. It is the perfection of the Byzantine style, differing from the early Romanesque and late renaissance of western Europe and the beautiful Gothic which must be considered the ideal of ecclesiastical architecture. It may not be as impressive as other great edifices built from five to ten centuries later, but its strength, solidity and grandeur, together with its great antiquity, give it a place unique among churches.

The collapse of St. Sophia's dome would be a greater loss than was the fall of the Venetian campanile, and its reconstruction would be utterly impossible. The problems of its building were so intricate and complex that the secret of them died with the architect Anthenius in the sixth century. It has been said that St. Sophia, "like Karnak, in Egypt, or the Athenian Parthenon, is one of the four great pinnacles of architecture; but, unlike them, it is no ruin, nor does it belong to a past world of constructive ideas, although it precedes by 700 years the fourth culmination of the building art in Chartres, Amiens or Bourges and thus must ever stand as the supreme monument of the Christian cycle."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ONE DAY'S WORK.

That Is All There Is Before You, So Do It to Perfection.

You have a hard thing to do. So hard it is that your breath comes short when you think of it, and your heart sinks down and becomes a bottomless pit of despondency.

If you let it go on sinking down and down you are done for, so stop it! Climb up again and look around.

You underrate your own courage if you tell yourself you cannot accomplish this task which looms before you.

Men have done great things before now—things which make one gasp at the splendor and glory of human achievement. Do you think their hearts never failed them; that they never looked forward with utter weariness to the heights they must climb and the seas they must cross and the years they must wait before success crowns them?

How did they manage it?

The secret is simple.

Through the eyes of imagination they pictured their distant goal as close to them; they saw it only one day ahead. Then they did one day's work—cheerfully, hopefully. And still the goal was one day distant—only one day—and, in fact, it had been brought one day nearer.

Sometimes through weariness or discouragement the goal vanished from sight, but the acquired habit of plodding on steadfastly, step by step, one day at a time, from hour to hour, brought them close to it in spite of themselves. And so, necessarily, at last they "arrived."

Helping the Bride.

GOT DRUNK ON A BEEFSTEAK

And Also on Overstrong Tea and Even on Cold Water.

According to a house surgeon in a London hospital, it is not necessary to take strong drink at all in order to be drunk. Cases have been known in which patients have got drunk on a beefsteak after having been for many weeks on a very light diet. The intoxication in these cases showed itself in a slight dizziness and drowsiness and indistinctness of speech.

Similar cases have been known in which the only intoxicant has been strong tea. In fact, there are instances in medical books of exceptional people in whom the constant use of overstrong, overdrawn tea has brought about distinct symptoms of delirium tremens.

Perhaps the most curious sort of intoxication on record is that in which the only intoxicant is cold water dripping from a water tap into the ear. In Germany a few years ago quite a number of morbid people had a craving for this curious way of inducing drunkenness, but it seems to have been stamped out.

The drip of the water is said to cause a painful boiling sensation at first and then to cause a pleasant drowsiness, ending in deep sleep. When the victim is roused he is dull and stupid in manner, like a heavy drinker. This craze makes its victim a nervous wreck in a very short time.—Pearson's Weekly.

RIDING THE SURF.

Riotous Sport In the Breakers That Lash the Coast of Hawaii.

"One of the novel pleasures in which most travelers indulge while in Honolulu is surf riding at Waikiki, near Diamond head," writes John Burroughs in the Century. "The sea, with a floor of lava and coral, is here shallow for a long distance out, and the surf comes in at intervals like a line of steeds cantering over a plain. We went out in our bathing suits in a long, heavy dugout, with a native oarsman in each end.

"When several hundred yards from shore we saw on looking seaward the long, shining billows coming, whereupon our oarsmen headed the canoe toward shore and plied their paddles with the utmost vigor, uttering simultaneously a curious, excited cry. In a moment the breaker caught us and, in some way holding us on its crest, shot us toward the shore like an arrow.

"The sensation is novel and thrilling. The foam flies; the waters leap about you. You are coasting on the sea, and you shout with delight and pray for the sensation to continue. But it is quickly over. The hurrying breaker slips from under you and leaves you in the trough, while it goes foaming on the shore. Then you turn about and row out from shore again and wait for another chance to be shot toward the land on the foaming crest of a great Pacific wave."

Turn to the Earth.

You to whom the universe has become a blast furnace, a coke oven, a cinder strewn freight yard, to whom the history of all ages is a tragedy with the climax now to whom our democracy and our flag are but playthings of the hypocrite, turn to the soil, turn to the earth, your mother, and she will comfort you. Rest, be it ever so little, from your black broodings. Think with the farmer once more, as your fathers did. Revere with the farmer our centuries old rural civilization, however little it meets the city's trouble. Revere the rural customs that have their roots in the immemorial benefits of nature. There is perpetual balm in Gilead, and many city workmen shall turn to it and be healed. This by faith and a study of the signs, we proclaim!—Nicholas Vachel Lindsay in Farm and Fireside.

Practical Piety.

The goodly minister saw one of his parishioners running rapidly down the road, trying to keep in sight of a retreating form ahead.

"Ah," called the minister, "whither away, my brother?"

Seeing the race was lost anyway, the chaser stopped and pantingly replied:

"That confounded thief stole my coat!"

"Ah, and you were following the Scriptural admonition to give him your cloak also, were you?"

"No," said the parishioner frankly, "but I intended, if I caught him, to give him a belt!"—Judge.

THREW THE MIKADO.

The Wrestler Who Wanted to Humble the Ruler of Japan.

Many anecdotes are still told in Japan about the late mikado, all of which are calculated to strengthen the admiration held for the deceased monarch on account of his benevolence and simplicity, as well as his wisdom.

At one time wrestling was a favorite pastime at the Japanese court and his majesty was able with ease to throw all the court attendants and officials. One man, however, Yamaoka Tetsutaro, was very anxious to throw the emperor because he was afraid that the latter might become too proud of his prowess in that and other sports. Finally the emperor challenged Yamaoka, and the latter threw the sovereign with great force.

The monarch, so the story goes, was not too pleased at the defeat, but was too good a sportsman to say anything. Later Yamaoka resigned his position at court on the plea that, though he had defeated the emperor for the good of the throne and the country, yet in doing so he had subjected his sovereign to a heinous indignity. The monarch, however, absolutely refused to accept the resignation, saying:

"You have done well to show that the ring is no respecter of persons, and I appreciate your loyal spirit in beating me." At all events Yamaoka was in high favor at court thereafter.—Tokyo Gazette.

MAKES NIAGARA A DWARF.

A Waterfall In British Guiana That Is 822 Feet High.

The Kaieteur waterfall, in British Guiana, is the highest waterfall in the world. It is of unsurpassed grandeur and beauty, as the Potaro river, unobstructed at its brink by islands or huge masses of rock, hurls itself in full flood into a great abyss.

Peering over the precipitous and sheer rocky face, within 100 feet of this avalanche of water, is an awe inspiring experience. The total height of the fall is 822 feet, or five times that of Niagara, which boasts only 161 feet. The fall is generally seen at the dry season, and consequently the name Kaieteur means "Old Man's fall" and was so called after an old man who lived in an Indian village years ago.

One day the natives, exasperated at the old man's bad temper, put him into a boat and let the boat carry him over the falls. The boat was, tradition says, turned to stone and is now a large rock at the foot of the falls, while the old man's ghost haunts the spot at night, and no Indian will approach. The fall, if harnessed, could generate a horsepower of 1,264,864.—New York Sun.

A King In Disguise.

A ruler who journeyed to the scene of his inauguration in disguise was the king of Roumania. Prince Charles of Hohenzollern traveled to Bukharest in 1866 in defiance of the powers when war between Prussia and Austria was imminent. In Switzerland he had a passport made out in the name of "Karl Hettingen," going to Odessa on business with a special note recording that Herr Hettingen wore spectacles. At the Austrian frontier a customs official demanded his name, and the prince had forgotten it. Happily Councilor Von Werner, who accompanied him, had the presence of mind to create a diversion by insisting upon paying duty for some cigars and meanwhile the prince consulted his passport. So he proceeded safely on his second class journey.—London Chronicle.

Strenuous Chivalry.

It is complained that modern conditions are killing "the chivalry of the middle ages." But mediaeval tales and romances show what that chivalry really was. Wife beating was a common incident on the part of those knights and gentlemen whose gallantry was a mere convention. The Chevalier de la Tour-Landry in his book of counsels to his daughters tells them the story of a woman who used to contradict her husband in public. One day, after expostulating in vain, he knocked her down, then kicked her face and broke her nose. "And so," comments the good chevalier, "she was disfigured for life, and thus, through her ill behavior and bad temper, she had her nose spoiled, which was a great misfortune to her." But not a word is said about the husband's brutality.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Bellefonte Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Bellefonte readers.

Mrs. J. F. Thal, 23 W. Thomas St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "I am very grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me. My back ached for a long time and I had severe pains in my kidneys, headaches and attacks of dizziness. The kidney secretions caused me no end of annoyance. When my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at Green's Pharmacy Co. and it did not take them long to give me relief. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone having kidney complaint. I still have unlimited confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills for whenever I have used them in the past two years, they have benefited me. You may continue to publish my former endorsement."

Interest increases each day in the contest being conducted by the Bush House Cigar Store to determine which clerk in town shall have a ten days' free trip to Atlantic City. The contest is now in its third week. There is still lots of time for new entries. You get a vote with each 5c purchase and double votes on Saturday.

The "Adams County Independent," published by D. B. Alleman, at Littlestown, Pa., last week noted the following: "Miss Mary Hicklen, of Bellefonte, and Misses Marie and Bess Fimple, of Ohio, school friends of Miss Margaret E. Alleman, and Mr. Schell, of Frederick, have been guests in the family of D. B. Alleman, this week."

We were'nt very much surprised to see Henry Weaver, of Pittsburgh, drop off the train here on Monday with the announcement that he was prepared to stay a few days. Henry is an old Bellefonte boy and always times his vacations to get back to his haunts along the trout streams. With Wilbur Baney and several other cronies he has been trying his hand after the elusive trout and catching some, too.

Eleven gentlemen from Lewistown last Sunday came to Bellefonte to attend the morning services at the Methodist Episcopal church. They were members of Dr. Yocum's congregation when he occupied the pulpit at Lewistown, and their coming to Bellefonte to hear their old pastor preach was one of the finest compliments they could bestow upon him. Some time ago a delegation of seventeen of Dr. Yocum's congregation at Lewistown visited Bellefonte to hear him preach.

Last Sunday a number of motor cyclists from nearby towns visited Bellefonte. They had their machines parked in the Diamond and were enjoying a rest in the shade when one of the riders asked his colleagues whether a motor cycle could climb to the top of reservoir hill. Five or six in the crowd took their machines and tried it. After several attempts one of the group finally succeeded in climbing to the highest point of the hill.

Rhoads & Knisely, the contractors and builders, on Monday received from Waterloo, Iowa, a concrete mixer which is of the most modern type and which is calculated to do the work in much less time than the old style machines. The mixing pot empties itself while a receiving box is being filled with sand, cement, etc., for the next batch. By the time the mixing pot is emptied another batch is ready for mixing, and in this way no time is lost in getting the concrete ready for use. The machine is operated by a gasoline engine attached to the top. Rhoads & Knisely are at present engaged in putting in concrete ponds at the fish hatchery, nearby town, and the new mixer was tried out there for the first time. The test proved entirely satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cook and daughter, Jeannette, of Baltimore, Md., are guests this week of Miss Mollie Snyder.

Mrs. Charles Pennington, of State College, was last week admitted to the Bellefonte hospital for an operation for appendicitis.

Master Wallace Hunter, who six weeks ago was admitted to the Bellefonte hospital for an operation for appendicitis, returned to his home at State College last Friday.

Miss Elizabeth Morris entertained at bridge on Tuesday afternoon in honor of Miss Sarah Hastings' house guests from Harrisburg.

Mrs. Hugh N. Crider and Miss Helen Ceader will depart today for Philadelphia. Mr. Crider will join them in the city on Saturday.

Mrs. Patsy Stewart and grand-daughter, Margaret, Stewart, returned home on Monday from WilkesBarre, having made the trip to and from that place in Dr. DeLaun Stewart's automobile.

On June 17, at the Reformed parsonage, at Boalsburg, by Rev. S. C. Stover, Mr. Thomas M. Fishburn and Miss Sarah R. Grenninger, both of State College, were married.

The Friday night dances at Hecla Park, with music by Smith's Orchestra, will commence this week. The usual excursion tickets will be on sale but a charge for dancing will be made to persons not holding railroad tickets.

Miss Helen Hawes has returned home from Oxford, Ohio, where she had been attending the Western College for Women. She was accompanied home by Miss Margaret Scott, of Braddock, who will visit at the Hawes home for a time. Miss Hawes was one of three girls in the large Sophomore class to carry off honors.

Fourth of July Notes.

Children wishing to enjoy a free automobile ride on the Fourth of July, to take place immediateiy after the parade, will form in an orderly line extending from R. A. Beck's barber shop down Allegheny Street, to Howard. Tickets will be issued to each child by Robert P. Hunter, at the northeast corner of the Diamond. Perfect order must be observed.

The public is respectfully urged to hang out flags and bunting at their houses and business places and help the Safe and Sane Fourth of July Committee in making it a gala day.

Children desiring to participate in the drills for the Fourth of July entertainment will meet for rehearsal at the High School building at 4 P. M. on Monday, June 23.

All children wishing to take part in the Fourth of July parade will meet at the High School building on Wednesday morning, June 25, at 10 o'clock.

Bicycle Theft Alleged.

Frank Hanna, originally of near Spring Mills, was arrested several days ago charged with stealing two bicycles from Bellefonte boys. Hanna was lodged in jail. One of the bicycles belonged to Fred Witmer and the other to Jack Montgomery. Witmer's wheel was stolen on May 10th, and Montgomery's about ten days later. When Hanna was arrested he had one of the bicycles in his possession. The other wheel had been given or sold to William Marshall, near Centre Hall. Chief of Police Dukeman wrote to Marshall on Saturday notifying him that the wheel had been stolen and that it would have to be returned at once. On Monday Marshall came to Bellefonte and explained that he had traded the wheel to a young man at Spring Mills. Marshall was notified to get the wheel and deliver it to the police at Bellefonte and that failure to do so would result in his arrest.

Centre County Basket Picnic.

The Centre County Association of Philadelphia will hold its annual basket picnic at Belmont Mansion, Fairmont Park, on Saturday afternoon, June 28th, 1913. All Centre Countians residing in and about Philadelphia are earnestly requested to affiliate themselves with the Association.
